400 Miles In California.
Oil, Fruit, Cattle.
Roads Above All.

HEARST RANCH, SAN SIMEON, Cal., Dec. 12.

THIS is written at the end of a motor trip from Hodge, Cal., on the Mojave Desert, 400 miles, to this Hearst ranch, half way between Los Angeles and San Francisco, on the edge of the Pacific.

YOU take the highway along the Santa Fe from Hodge to Victorville, then strike across the desert and through the mountain passes to Ventura via Palmdale.

THE dirt road across the desert, skirting the edge of an air mail landing, east of the Cajon pass, would be called an excellent road in the East. Long before you reach Palmdale the road is paved, and then forward over the desert through the twenty miles of mountain passes to Ventura and along the edge of the Pacific, through Carpinteria, Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo and on to San Simeon, the roads are perfect.

NO MAN knows what a state can do in road building until he has driven over a few thousand miles of California roads. New Jersey and other states have made a beginning—California shows the finished product.

Bring your car here, travel ten thousand miles and leave without a bump. Over the desert, the mountains and along the Pacific the Cadillac car ran the four hundred miles quietly, in ten hours, as though it had been on a city boulevard.

THAT 400-mile trip gives you all kinds of California country, products and climate. High cold winds from the Pacific sweeping over the Southern Sierras and across the desert, bringing the temperature of mountain snows with them, summer climate in the orange groves across the mountains, in the valleys back of Ventura and here, halfway between Northern and Southern California, a midway temperature, roses and heliotrope growing out-of-doors, 2,000 feet above sea level in a climate like October in New York.

COMING through the mountains westward from the desert on perfectly paved roads, you pass hundreds of oil wells, on the hillsides, looking down, grimy and rich on the farmers in the valleys.

If, like Will Rogers, the multimillionaire humorist, you happened to be the second largest holder of Tidewater Associated Oil, you would remember with interest that in Ventura county alone, that company has, in the ground waiting for higher prices, more than 100,000,000 barrels of

WRECK FLYER; 1 DEAD

One man was killed, six were injured and scores of others were shaken up late last night when the Detroit Limited, Baltimore and Ohio crack train from Washington to Detroit, was wrecked at Guffey Station, a small flag stop seven miles east of Versailles. Reports that the train had been deliberately wrecked and evidence apparently supporting this rumor were being investigated by railroad officials this morning.

DEAD

WEEDER, CHARLES H., of 422 Twenty-eighth street, McKeesport, baggagemaster.

INJURED

BELTZ, CHARLES, 58, of 5212 Gertrude street, Hazelwood, the engineer.

KELLY, JOHN, 60, of 409 High street, Meyersdale, conductor.

ENDLER, WALTER, 236 Trowbridge street, fireman.

SIMONTON, MRS. THOMAS G., of the Schenley Apartments.

PARE, MRS. C. J., of Lexington avenue, Aspinwall.

BURKLICA, JOHN, 7, of Pittsburgh.

The wreck occurred on a sharp curve, the engine and four coaches leaving the tracks and piling up against a steep hillside. One of the coaches swung around and hung at a dangerous angle over the bank of the Youghiogheny river. The tracks were torn up for a considerable distance and the rails were twisted and broken. Three telegrap poles were knocked down and all wire communications broken.

BOLTS REMOVED

Railroad police, investigating the report of a section foreman, said that they had found three sections of track where the rail bolts had been removed. They also said that spikes had been drawn from the ties. The deliberate attempt to wreck the flyer is thought to have taken place shortly before the train passed, as the Capitol Limited had

Davis To Go Ahead

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The conference of operators and mine union officials called by Secretary of Labor Davis to meet here to discuss the coal suspension in the northern fields will be held tomorrow despite refusal of many leading operators to attend.

Returning to his office today after a week-end absence, the labor secretary, who proposed the conference at the suggestion of the union leaders, went over the replies to his call and announced that the meeting would not be abandoned.

While principal operators of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia declined to accept invitations to the conference, all of the union officials addressed were said to have accepted, along with some individual coal operators in the territory affected by the suspension.

OHIO OPERATORS REJECT

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Coal operators of Ohio today declined to participate tomorrow in the joint conference of operators and miners called by Secretary of Labor Davis.

S. H. Robbins, president of the Ohio Coal Operators' Association, in a telegram to Secretary Davis, said: "We will not meet with representatives of the United Mine

KATHERINE YOGOVICK

Playing with a revolver at the home of Policeman John W. Cahill, 140 Banner way, yesterday, Katherine Yogovick, 10, of 143 Forty-fifth street, was fatally wounded when the gun was discharged accidentally. She died a few hours later in St. Francis Hospital from a bullet wound near the heart.

Threw Away Data

Certain county records were destroyed last summer because of "lack of space," C. J. Bentz, assistant to the county statistician, admitted today at the resumption of Controller C. C. McGovern's audit hearing.

The records covered some activities of M. J. Verosky, county purchasing agent, and the period in which McGovern has charged the county did repair work for the Westmoreland Country Club.

ADMITS $1,000 PURCHASES

Bentz's testimony came after Verosky, political power in Braddock, had admitted having authorized $1,000 purchases in one day, although he is limited, by law, to $300 purchases, unless bids are advertised. Verosky offered no explanation.

The much-sought bank account of Joseph R. Gaussa, a county road superintendent, finally was brought to light by McGovern, who received deposit slips and ledger receipts of Gaussa's account from Harry R.

BLONDE, HELD, SWOONS

PAINESVILLE, O., Dec. 12—(AP.)—Velma West, charged with killing her husband, T. Edward West, with a hammer, last Tuesday night in a quarrel over attending a bridge party at Cleveland, was held to the Lake county grand jury without bond today on a first degree murder warrant following a preliminary hearing before Municipal Judge Marvin H. Helter.

Mrs. West uttered a piercing scream when the judge ordered her held. She collapsed in her chair and slid to the floor. Her mother and a deputy sheriff leaped to her side, but she rallied before assistance could be rendered and pushed them away.

Rising to her feet she looked about the room and again went into a storm of hysterics which culminated in a second swooning spell. She was unconscious several minutes before court attaches succeeded in reviving her. Then she left the courtroom on the arm of Sheriff Edward Rasmussen, going outside on a fire escape, where she stood for some time breathing the fresh air.

When she left the fire escape she seemed to have regained her composure.

The state put five witnesses on the stand, including Dr. O. O. Hausch, Lake county coroner, who described the injuries inflicted by the several hammer blows. Any one of them, he said, would have caused death.

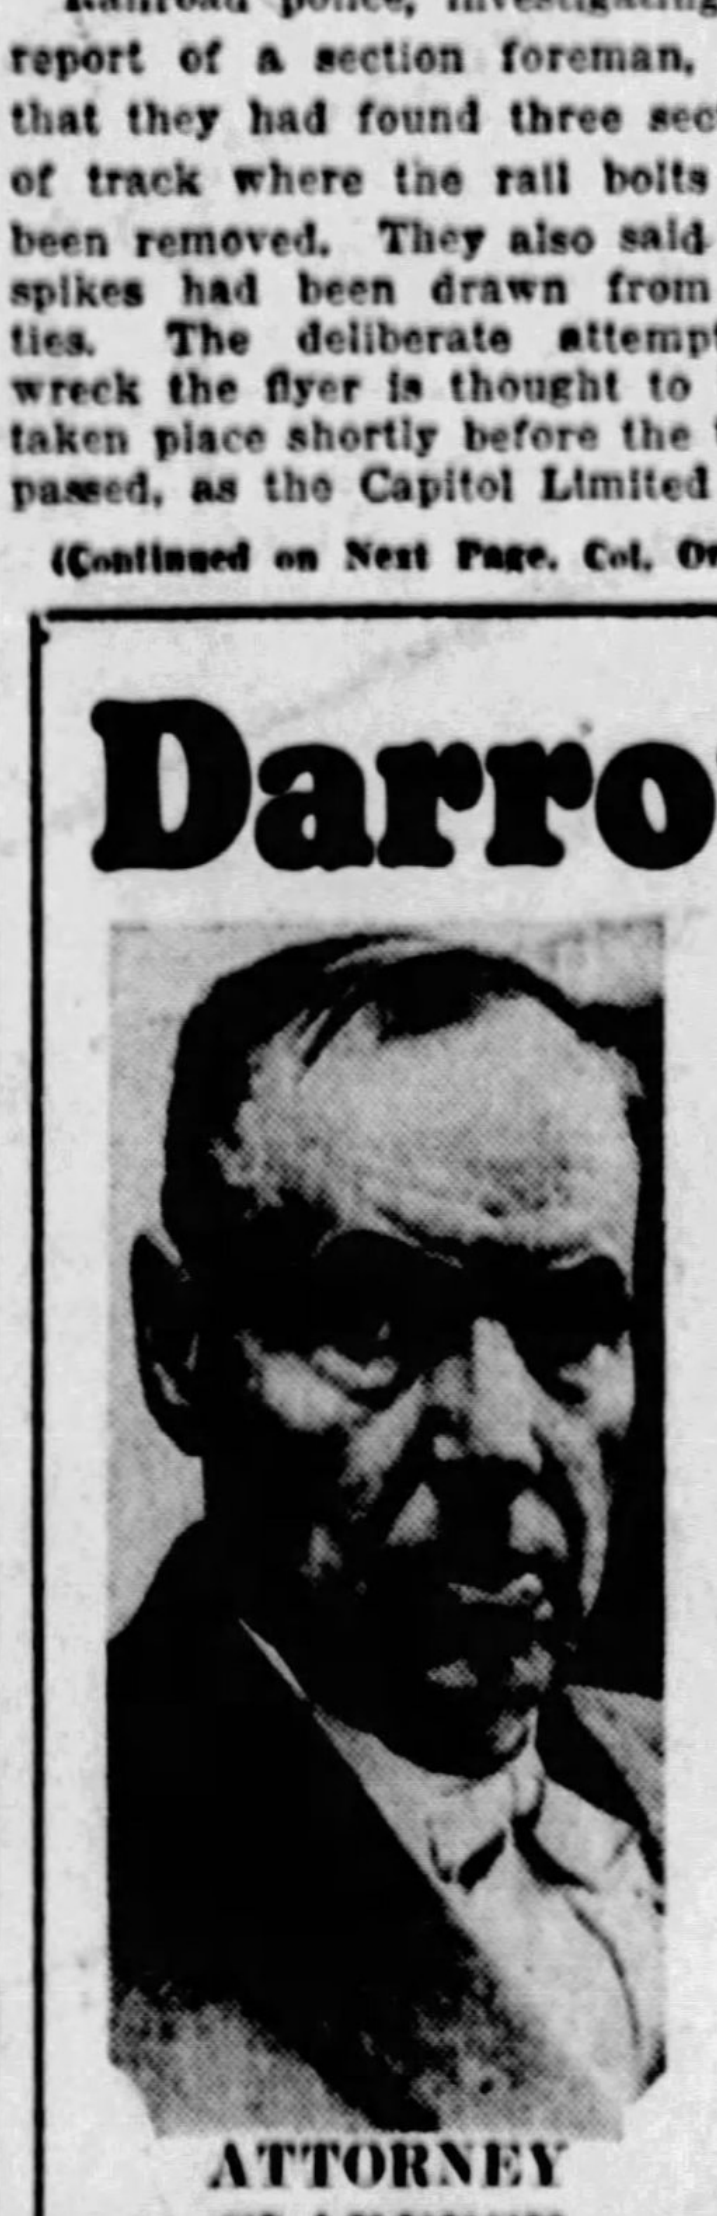
COURT JAMMED

In denying the defense plea for a reduction in the charge, which would have admitted the blond defendant to bail, Judge Helter branded the killing as "the most unspeakable crime in the history of Lake county."

Poulson, in pleading for the reduction, told the court that Mrs. West wielded the hammer in an attempt to protect herself after she had been attacked by her husband.

The hearing was carried out in a courtroom jammed to the doors by a crowd that overflowed into the corridors of the city hall. Residents of Painesville said it was the largest audience that ever tried to hear a trial in this city.

Darrow Defends Girl Hammer Slayer



ATTORNEY CLARENCE DARROW

NEW YORK, December 12.

AN IMPULSE, relentless as time, and never to be parried, swayed the hand of pretty Velma West when she put her slim blonde strength behind hammer blows that beat out the life of Edward West in their little Perry, O., home. And because she could not have resisted that impulse if she wanted to, the state has neither right nor reason to take her life in expiation.

Clarence Darrow, who has done, perhaps, more than any other man to put science into the business of legal punishment, advanced that belief today in behalf of the 21-year-old bride who killed her husband and then went off and sang jazz songs at a bridge party. It was simply a case of desire bursting through the bonds of small town repression, he said, the repression of a "tight-moraled little town."

"It was as if she had been locked in a gloomy, restraining room away from everything her heart desired. She broke down the door," said Darrow.

"The impulse to kill comes like scarlet fever or appendicitis in such cases. We do not kill patients because they have such ailments. We should not kill patients who succumb to temporary mental harassment."

What applies to Mrs. West applies with equal force to Ruth Snyder, Darrow said. She could no more help killing than she could have changed the color of her eyes, he believes.

MAKE CLOTHING APPEAL FOR MINERS' CHILDREN

Evicted from their homes, an army of coal miners in the Pittsburgh district, deprived of an income by the strike, are taking refuge with their families in emergency barracks erected by the United Mine Workers of America—rude, cheerless, hastily constructed dwellings.

Among those who must live in these makeshift shelters are thousands of children. Their discomfort will be great in any event, but it will be mitigated somewhat if they are provided with warm clothing, and particularly with shoes. A "Bundle Day" for their benefit will be held on Tuesday, December 20.

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, said today he hoped the people of Pittsburgh would make liberal donations to these innocent little victims of the strike. The bundles may be left at 1903 Fifth avenue, which is near the Fifth Avenue High School, or at sub-stations to be designated later.

Clothing of all sorts, for men and

OPEN PROBE OF DEADLY DRINK

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A coffee container containing a beverage suspected of fatally poisoning a motion picture actor and seriously affecting three women, was the central clue in an invetigsation here today. The victim, George D. Bailey, 64, died Saturday, supposedly of heart failure, shortly after taking a drink of coffee at his home.

Yesterday Mrs. Bailey, her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Olivarias, and the latter's sister-in-law, Miss Tommy Olivarias, drank some coffee from the same container and became seriously ill. The physician called said they would recover only because of the prompt treatment given them. Two of the women, who were found in critical condition, complained of suffering a choking sensation, which recalled to Mrs. Bailey that her husband had done the same.

"My husband clutched his throat just prior to his death," she told investigating police. "He kept mumbling he was being choked to death."

The veteran film actor's body was removed to the county morgue for an autopsy, and a chemical analysis of the coffee was ordered.

Bailey came here 30 years ago from Utica, N. Y.

women as well as youngsters, will be welcomed, but the chief need is for children's shoes. On account of the changes in styles of adults' shoes, Mr. Murray explained, it is comparatively easy to obtain old-fashioned, but serviceable, footwear for grownups; but styles in children's shoes do not change, hence the merchants are not left with unsalable stocks, and the need of the miners' children must be supplied by appealing for discarded shoes, though by that is not meant worn-out shoes.

"True charity," said Mr. Murray, in appealing to the people of this district for their assistance in relieving the miners' wants, "consists in giving something of value; and we hope that those who contribute bundles on December 20 will put in children's shoes that will afford real protection to the feet of these tots, and not footwear so full of holes as to be of no service."

About 225,000 persons in District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers are suffering from the strike, and 85,000 of them, according to Mr. Murray, are under 14.

The people of this district are requested to look over discarded clothing or clothing that they would be likely to discard soon, and pick out serviceable garments for donation to the miners' families. Arrangements for the establishment of collecting stations and for truck service will soon be completed, Mr. Murray said.

gone over the tracks less than a half hour before.

Three sleeping cars remained on the tracks, but the impact threw the passengers to the floor. Many Pittsburghers were on the train, most of them returning from Washington where they had spent the week-end. Among them was Mrs. Charles H. Kline, wife of the mayor; Mrs. Howard Douglass of McKeesport, wife of the late Judge Douglass; Deputy Coroner Raymond F. Sellers and Miss Edith Harvey, a nurse from the Children's Hospital.

Miss Harvey, who was with Mr. Sellers and three other nurses, aided the injured and remained at the scene until all had been helped into a special train that brought them to Pittsburgh. Beltz and Kelly were taken from the train at Hazelwood and taken to the Mercy Hospital. Beltz has a fractured right leg and Kelly has two fractured ribs.

Weeder's body was taken from the train at Hazelwood and removed to the undertaking establishment of John A. Fisher. The through passengers were brought to the B. & O. station here and transferred to a train that took them on to Detroit. The other injured suffered slight bruises and lacerations and all were able to go home.

The belief that the train has been deliberately wrecked was strengthened when Beltz said that Saturday night he found a large sandstone boulder on the tracks at the same spot. He reported that the rock was large enough to throw the train from the rails, but he saw the obstruction in time to stop the train.

Workers of America with whom we have no contract and with whom we have severed all relations and who have no interest in the properties we control."

SPURN PARLEY HERE

While the United Mine Workers of America will send a solid delegation to Washington tomorrow to attend Secretary of Labor James J. Davis' truce parley, few coal companies from the Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania district will be represented. The meeting was called by Secretary Davis in an effort to end the bituminous coal strike in the tri-state district.

Philip Murray, international vice president, and P. T. Fagan, the latter president of District No. 5, Pittsburgh, left early this afternoon for the conference, with miners' leaders of districts in Ohio, West Virginia and various sections of Pennsylvania also attending.

John H. Jones, president of the Bertha Consumers Coal Company, the only Pittsburgh coal concern of prominence known to have accepted an invitation to the gathering, will personally represent his company and leaves for Washington tonight. The Langeloth Coal Company, a subsidiary of the American Zinc and Chemical Company, which considered the invitation today, announced it would not be represented.

At the office of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company, one of the district's largest producers, it was stated the company had no statement to make.

Word from Fairmont and the West Virginia district generally indicated that few coal operators would attend, in view of the refusal of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, the two largest tonnage producers here, to accept the invitation.

While the mine leaders are in Washington the work of extending relief to the striking miners and their families will proceed in this district with renewed vigor, it was stated.

The mine workers' organization also will continue rushing work on barracks at various points, it having been agreed that all striking miners occupying company houses of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation will vacate by December 20. Barracks are being erected at different points to house the men.

MRS. KLINE CALM IN WRECK

Mrs. Charles H. Kline, wife of Pittsburgh's mayor, displayed rare presence of mind last night in the wreck of the crack B. & O. flyer at Guffey Station, it was revealed this morning by Mrs. Thomas D. Simonton of the Schenley Apartments, who was injured in the crash.

Mrs. Kline and Mrs. Simonton were passengers in the parlor car which was hurled crossways on the track and turned over on its side at the brink of the Youghiogheny River. Mrs. Simonton was seated about the center of the car and was thrown over the top of the other passengers to the front of the car, suffering severe injuries to the face and head and a badly wrenched knee.

As the car settled on its side, the passengers were thrown into turmoil, but Mrs. Kline remained very calm, Mrs. Simonton says. The mayor's wife came to her assistance almost immediately and when she saw that Mrs. Simonton was unable to rise to her feet, she ordered one of the trainmen to break a window and help the injured woman from the car. When the command was not immediately complied with, Mrs. Kline threatened to break the window herself, but other passengers came to her aid and carried her to safety, Mrs. Simonton declared.

Mrs. Simonton also told how a brother was injured in a similar accident a number of years ago. "He occupied seat No. 13 and so did I last night. It must be an unlucky number for our people," she declared.

Hosick, secretary of the Potter Title and Trust Company.

McGove failed to reveal the amounts involved in the account, and he returned the papers only after Hosick promised to furnish him photostatic copies. In previous hearings McGovern had intimated that Gaussa deposited county pay checks other than his own.

State Representative Luke Sullivan, Second Legislative District, and brother of Alderman P. J. Sullivan, Leslie lieutenant, was brought into the audit again today. John Herron, Glenshaw, and Gus Sauer, Sutter road, Shaler township, told Controller McGovern that they saw, on a number of occasions, county trucks hauling "Red Dog" and slag to the summer home of the Sullivans on Sutter road.

R. L. Taylor, 220 South Negley avenue, a "Red Dog" salesman, intimated that he secured a contract for furnishing "Red Dog" to the county when he showed Director Norman F. Brown, County Public Works Department, an order signed by Gaussa to supply the material for a private road. Gaussa agreed to pay for it personally. Taylor said he "clinched" the contract a few days before the last general election. Taylor told the Controller that he had supplied the material but the county refused to pay him $800, the amount involved. The hearing will be continued Wednesday morning.

oil. But all the oil that all the oil companies combined have in all the earth has not the real value that will come from the few top inches of this California soil.

THINGS out here are big. The Pacific, stretching away to China, is the biggest ocean, the road running from San Diego to Seattle is the big road enterprise and runs through the world's biggest empire.

EVERYBODY here in California will prove to you that this Western country's future is by far the biggest, only just starting, and the cities are destined to be the biggest in the world.

THIS Hearst cattle ranch, with more than 240,000 acres surrounding the big ranch house on the hill, is a good deal of a ranch. Hearst, it happens, has two others, each four times as big in acreage as this one, but none to compare with this in interest.

CATTLEMEN will like to hear that beef prices are now about as high as in war time. Sales on this coast for good stock ran $11.75 a hundred during the past week. Hearst's ranch superintendent, Mr. A. F. Parks, is holding his steers for a higher price.

Here the ranch specializes in pure bred Herfords that, with their white faces, cover many thousands of acres. Their humbler "grade" brothers and sisters, several thousands of them, are butchered to pay for and support the pure bred stock. All told Hearst has about 100,000 head on his different ranches and now plans a big dairy on his "little" six-thousand acre farm, just outside Los Angeles.

Honest single taxers may weep to think how unearned increment will increase the value of that little city farm some day.

TAKE your car, your wife and the children, and drive through this Western country, or come by train, or through the Panama Canal, and start your motor trip when you get here.

Motor camps are everywhere and good. Last night, on the edge of the Pacific, close to oil wells, pumping out in the ocean, an independent man from Brooklyn was camping with his family, wife, four children and the dog, not 10 feet from high tide line.

HE HAD a tent attached to his little car—any man can afford a car like it. A stove chimney ran up out of the tent, the mother was cooking dinner, the family waiting for it. Dinner over, they all sleep in the tent and car. No hotel bills, no time table to watch, nothing to do, but do exactly as you please and go where you please, when you please.

THAT has been made possible by the automobile. Try it for yourself, study your country, take time to travel through it and see it. Buy a lot here and there as you go—near Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Portland, Me., Freehold, N. J., Stewart, Fla., or in the center of Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego or Seattle.

GET your leases, get them paid for, keep up your taxes—that means contributing to public schools, take care of your land and later, it will take care of you.

THIS is a fine earth, own a little of it. And whatever you do, see the earth, beginning with your own country.

Be able, when you go to heaven to tell the angels from other countries about the United States and why it is the finest country between the two poles.

P. S.—Many other things to tell about the edge of this Western ocean, but Hearn, the Western Union manager at San Luis Obispo, ticks over the wire, "tell the man writing that stuff to hurry, or we'll have him lifted." Telegraphers know what that means.

ROBBER KILLS GROCER, WOUNDS CUSTOMER

WOODLAWN, Pa., Dec. 12—During an attempted holdup in his grocery, 218 Station street, late Saturday night, Steve Valfeas, 34, was shot to death, and Ernest Pampas, a customer, was seriously wounded by a Negro robber.

Hearing the shots from her room on the second floor, Mrs. Helen Telepes rushed to the storeroom, and after a struggle, during which two shots were fired, succeeded in overpowering and disarming the Negro. She then held him until the arrival of Woodlawn police. James Smith, 23, of 23 Park street, Woodlawn, is the suspect under arrest.

Valfeas was behind the counter coversing with Pampas, who lives on the third floor of the building, when the Negro, masked and armed, entered the store and demanded the men to throw up their hands.

For a reply Valfeas leaped over the couiter and seized the Negro, and in the brief struggle that followed the grocer was shot twice through the chest. Seeing his victim fall the robber rushed to the door, only to be confronted by Pampas, who fought to get possession of the revolver. Twice more the gun barked, and Pampas fell with bullets in his leg and shoulder.

Before the killer could escape he was seized by Mrs. Telepes, who opened the door of the store. A struggle followed, and Mrs. Telepes, with the aid of two other women, who heard the shots and cries, disarmed the Negro. The two shots fired at Mrs. Telepes went wild.

The wounded were taken to the Rochester General Hospital. Valfeas died there shortly after he was admitted. Pampas' right leg was amputated above the knee. His condition is serious.

BELL BANK BONDS GO ON BLOCK TODAY

Gold bonds of the Carnegie Coal Company, valued at $300,000, will be offered at public sale today, another step in the liquidation of the Carnegie Trust Company. The bonds are being sold in accordance with a court order in the suit of the Allegheny County Home against the defunct Carnegie Bank. The suit was entered by county directors of the poor. John A. Bell, former president of the bank, is serving a six-and-one-half-year sentence in the Allegheny General Hospital.

A threat to break a window herself, when others hesitated, did the work. Mrs. Kline lost her hat and shoes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Letters purporting to involve a second man in the murder of Albert Snyder, for which Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray are under sentence of death, today were in the possession of Edgar F. Hazelton, Mrs. Snyder's attorney.

Hazelton said he had known of the contents of the letters for two months and had investigated them. He refused to say what action, if any, would be taken on them.

The letters were written by David B. Chambers, of New York City, whose interest in the case was not clear, Hazelton said. Reporters who attempted to interview Chambers were sent word that he had been advised not to give out any information in the case.

They took away Pat Somerset, actor, matinee idol and what might be called a modern Romeo. They also took Shelby Worrall Somerset, his wife of a few hours. Gun Battle Puts 3 in Hospital

A woman and her husband were shot, the woman wounded seriously, and another man was slashed about the face with a knife during a free-for-all fight that followed an alleged wine party last night in the home of Frank Galo, 35, of 1109 Sisco street, Sharpsburg.

The injured, all under arrest, are: Galo; his wife, Teresa, 32; and a man known as "Jimmy," of Tenth street, Sharpsburg, who may die. They are in St. Francis hospital.

"Jimmy," police say, shot Galo and the woman after announcing that he had been robbed while playing cards and drinking wine in the Galo home. Galo was shot in the hand and the woman in the head. Other guests turned on "Jimmy," and he was slashed on the face. After the shooting and cutting the guests fled. Three other men later were arrested in connection with the affair. They are Frank LaRosa, 45, of Sisco street; Antonio Girardo, 45, of Fourteenth street, and Samuel Coniglio, 45, of 1121 Sisco street.

Says Kresge, $500,000 Dry Angel, Sells Wine Kegs to Rum Makers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Sebastian S. Kresge, the multi-millionaire chain store owner, who has been the chief financial angel of the Anti-Saloon League, and who last week announced a new gift of $500,000, was the target today of a satirical statement issued by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

"Will the funds for this latest donation," said the statement, "be derived from profits obtained by Mr. Kresge in the sale of beer—hootch—and winemaking accessories sold in his department stores and five-and-ten-cent emporiums?"

Referring to Kresge's local department store, the statement continued:

"An elaborate display of wine kegs, wine presses, patented bung accessories to assure potent fermentation of fruit juices, whisky, cocktail, beer, ale and champagne glasses; decanters, cocktail shakers, bottling and corking machines and other equipment necessary in distilling, home-brewing and winemaking is featured in the 'home furnishing' department of the Palais Royal department store."

In announcing his half-million dollar gift last week, Kresge deplored drinking by "so-called good people" and declared they should set an example of respect for the Volstead law.

"PEEPING TOM" SOUGHT

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 12.—Police have been notified of the activities of a "Peeping Tom" by residents of Greenwood, a suburb. On several occasions he has been surprised as he was peering through windows.

At one home he had climbed to a porch roof and was peeping through a bedroom window when he was discovered by members of the family. His visits are made at night about 10:30 o'clock.

SOLDIERS BLOCK IMPEACHMENT OF GOVERNOR

By International News Service.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 12.—Members of the Oklahoma Legislature were dispersed at the door of the House of Representatives here today by Brig. Gen. Charles McPherson, in command of the Oklahoma City National Guardsmen.

Members of the Legislature then convened in a local hotel, discussed the situation and recessed until tomorrow.

GOVERNOR CALLS TROOPS

Brig. Gen. McPherson acted upon orders from Gov. Henry S. Johnston, who issued a proclamation early today declaring the capital under martial law.

Seventy-nine members of the Oklahoma Legislature were planning to meet to vote upon impeachment charges—the nature of which have been closely guarded—and set the Senate high court of impeachment into motion and suspend the Governor.

At 10 o'clock members of the Legislature, a large crowd of spectators and newspapermen assembled in the rotunda of the capitol in front of the door to the House chamber. They were ordered dispersed from the entire floor.

Three newspapermen, who were questioning House members in the central lobby of the fourth floor, were ordered away, along with the others. One newspaperman, who was slow to obey, was seized by two guards and pushed from the center of the rotunda. After everyone had left the rotunda, a rope barrier was stretched around it.

The judge adjourned hearing.

Jeannette House Is Bombed

JEANNETTE, Pa., Dec. 12.—Mystery surrounds the bombing of the home of Baptiste Bellone, Lowry and Locust streets, here early today, which broke windows in the Bellone home and three nearby houses.

Members of the Bellone family were thrown from their beds. None was injured.

George Yurst, chief of police, said that the Bellone family was unable to furnish any clue. The bomb was placed at the side of the house and the explosion tore a hole in the ground at the cellar wall. Windows on that side of the house, a two-story brick, were demolished.

Windows in the homes of Ernest Claval, Louis Belfiglio, Casper Di Diano and George Jupena nearby were broken by the explosion.

DENTON U.S. SHIP BOARD CHOICE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Albert H. Denton, of Kansas, was nominated by President Coolidge today to be a member of the United States Shipping Board in place of W. S. Hill, of South Dakota, who had incurred the displeasure of the administration.

ACT TO PUT DIAMOND MARKET ON PAYING BASIS

ENGLISH MOVES CITY INCREASE STALL RENTS

A move to put the Diamond Market, now being operated at a loss to the city, on a self-sustaining basis by increasing the rentals, was begun by Council at a budget meeting today.

The move was started by Councilman W. Y. English who, suggesting that the rents be raised, if necessary, and the stalls auctioned to the highest bidders, requested a report giving details of the cost and income from the structure which has been one of the city's "white elephants" as far as finance is concerned.

SUGGESTS SINGLE LEASE

A suggestion that the entire building be leased to one person who could re-lease the stalls, was made by P. J. McArdle, who said there was no reason why people who buy at butcher shops in Mt. Washington and East End should pay taxes that benefit only the shops and patrons in the Market. The Diamond market is operated under a different system than the North Side market, where the expenditures cannot exceed the income.

On motion of McArdle, the Bureau of Highways and Sewers was asked to report on the advisibility of "using machines where labor is now used" in caring for city streets and alleys.

Organizations and individuals not connected with the city administration who want to be heard on budget matters will have an opportunity Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Council decided today. No department heads will be permitted to present supplemental budget requests unless these are forwarded by the Mayor.

"My idea is that we should cut this budget as low as possible and explain to those wanting additional expenditures that it is as high as we feel the city can go," said Councilman John S. Herron. "Then, if any department or organization wants to ask for something more in face of that the responsibility will be on them and not on us."

A report from the Welfare Department showed that 20,785 tons of coal will be mined during 1927 at the City Home at Mayview. This coal will cost $44,682, an average of $2.16 per ton, the lowest in the history of the mine. The amount of coal obtained each year has increased gradually since 1919, when 15,640 tons were secured at an average cost of $2.47.

FIVE OF BANDIT GANG HELD

James Mascara, 19, of 36 Thirty-ninth street, was arraigned with Josephine Narr and five other members of a gang, captured last week, before Magistrate E. M. Hough in Morals Court this morning. Mascara, who was arrested Friday, admitted implication in some of the robberies with which the gang is charged. He was ordered held for court with the girl and Albert and Anthony Collett and F. F. Boyle. Two others, Edward Santek and Joseph Cooper, taken with the gang, were charged with being suspicious characters and fined $50 each, with the alternative of spending 30 days in the workhouse.

Signal Honors

COL. GEORGE GIBBS

The other day President Coolidge appointed Col. George Gibbs chief signal officer of the United States Army. In the new post he will take the rank of major general. He formerly commanded the signal corps in the Second Corps area.

FEW VALUATION COMPLAINTS RECEIVED

Few complaints were made today before the City Board of Assessors in the opening of hearings in appeals from property owners in the First and Second wards regarding the valuation set upon real estate in the 1927 triennial assessment. This is the first of a three-day period set apart to hear appeals from downtown property owners.

"We have heard from no large property owners yet," said Chief Assessor Thomas C. McMahon, "but it still is early. Big holders of real estate are taking off their assessment figures and are viewing increases from every angle. The board has tried to be fair. Where increases were made there has been a definite advance in the value of property, notably in Grant street, Market street, Seventh avenue and other sections of the old 'Hump' district. Increases were levied where improvements have been made. Property values from anticipated improvements have not been raised."

The few who assailed the assessors' offices on the fifth floor of the City-County Building were vociferous in their complaints, declaring that their property had been assessed 25 per cent higher than formerly. Some brought their lawyers along and showed fight. All were told that they would be given due consideration in their appeals.

KITCHENER POST TO HOLD MILITARY BALL

A military ball, to be held early in February, was proposed at a meeting of Lord Kitchener Post, British War Veterans, held in Walton Hall. A committee was appointed and definite plans will be announced later. At the meeting two candidates for membership to the post were initiated.

An invitation was given members of Kitchener Post and Edith Cavell Post to attend a reunion of Spanish-American War veterans to be held in the Harris Theater next Sunday. Movies, entertainment and several speakers will feature the program.

Hogging Nine Hogs Into One Truck Brings Fine

You can't treat a hog just any old way, Steve Domitrobich, Woodlawn, learned today. Steve was fined $10 by Justice of the Peace John A. Joyce on complaint of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society that he had refused to make life comfortable for his hogs. Steve, according to the charge, packed nine wide and handsome hogs into a small truck and ignored suggestions that there was room for only six or so.

PENN TWP. ASKS ANNEXATION

A petition asking for the annexation of a portion of Penn township was received by Council today. It was signed by more than three-fifths of the property owners involved. At a special election held several months ago voters of part of the township disapproved annexation. The present petition, it was said at the office of the city clerk, is from a slightly smaller section and was prepared under a different law so that no election will not be required.

TAKE SEALS' FUNDS IN MUNHALL SCHOOL THEFT

The Munhall School, robbed during the night, yielded thieves $5 from the Christmas Seals' fund and $10 in school funds. Several small articles were taken and books and papers were strewn about the rooms. Jewelry worth $300 and $24, cash, was taken from the home of C. W. McClure, 429 Eleventh avenue, Munhall.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN TO PRESENT YULE CANTATA

Plans are being completed for the Christmas cantata, "The Children's Christmas," which will be presented by the boys and girls of the Industrial Home for Crippled Children, Tuesday evening, at Carnegie Music Hall.

"Brownies," "Educated Cats" and walking and talking dolls will help "Santa," Sam Linton, and "Mrs. Santa," Mabel Hover, to give the home children a merry Christmas. Santa's secretary, "Scribble," is played by William Ruska and "Jack Frost" by Kathleen Barry. Important members of the cast for "The Nativity" are Evelyn Painter, as St. John; Mary Vendemia, as the mute boy; Martha Peach, as Mary, and Peter Lektrich, as Joseph. Each child is taking a part in the play and also helping to make posters, print programs, design costumes and prepare the music for the home orchestra.

LAY SOUTH SIDE MAN'S DEATH TO MONOXIDE

SQUIRREL HILL ASKS LIBRARY

The Squirrel Hill Board of Trade is about to start a campaign for the erection of a civic building in that section and wants the city to use the first floor of the proposed structure for a branch library, according to a communication received today by Council. For some time residents of that district have been campaigning for the creation of such a branch. The letter estimated that the library in the new building would cost the city approximately $5,000 annually. The second floor of the proposed structure will be used as an auditorium.

WANT GAS TANKS IN M'KEESPORT BARRED

Alleging that four 10,000 gallon gasoline storage tanks endanger a densely populated residential section, the city of McKeesport today filed a petition in Common Pleas Court asking for a preliminary injunction against Baehr Brothers, owners of the tanks, restraining them from storing gasoline or other inflammable liquids in the containers. The petition, signed by Mayor George H. Lysle, was presented by Harry Jones, city solicitor of McKeesport.

The tanks are situated at East Twenty-eighth avenue, near Walnut street, McKeesport, and according to the petitioners, were constructed in a negligent manner and are not properly safeguarded. Judge H. H. Rowand fixed December 22 for the hearing in the case.

Hemorrhoids Disappear

All Pile Misery Banished Without Cutting or Salves.

External treatments seldom banish Piles for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at May Drug Co., who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

PASTOR SHOOTS AT 'BOOTLEG' EDITORIAL

At the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church last evening Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan replied to the Sun-Telegraph's recent editorial on bootlegging. It was a Prohibition Rally of his church which sent him last week as its delegate to the Anti-Saloon League convention in Washington D. C.

He said in part:

"The newspapers claim that they give the people what they want. If the Sun-Telegraph, coming as a new paper to Pittsburgh, thinks that the decent people want the kind of liquor propaganda which it has been presenting editorially for some weeks past, it has not yet learned our city. While many may want liquor they surely are more desirous of facts and not mere propagandist platitudes. The full page editorial and the picture of November 27th represent the bootleg liquor traffic as simply overwhelming, but the editor is satisfied with assertions and an imaginary picture in proving it.

"The editorial seeks to show that the solution of the liquor problem would come if light wines and beer should return. It does not defend whisky and gin but seems to overlook the fact that these liquors are not legally with us today solely because of National Prohibition. In 1917 the country was producing 286,000,000 gallons of distilled liquors a year. The country would be doing that today if it were not for prohibition. It is prohibition which has cut this enormous legal production down to 1,323,000 gallons in 1925. Now does anyone suppose that the bootleg trade is manufacturing and selling anything like 286,000,000 gallons of whisky today? That trade today is deprived of advertising, compelled to work in the dark, pursued by 4,000 government agents, who in spite of pitiably small numbers and all other handicaps of enforcement had 41,000 persons convicted last year and collected over seven millions of dollars in fines. Is that conductve to good business in whisky by bootleggers, and with those handicaps will anyone believe that as much liquor can possibly be sold as before those handicaps were placed there by prohibition? If the Sun-Telegraph had wanted to picture the legitimate beverage whisky trade before prohibition it would have needed at least the whole of its editorial page, and not just one half of it to correctly portray the "The Lawful Whisky Ocean."

But the contention is that the bootleg whisky though less is more deadly. But if it is it does not happen to kill as many people as the so-called "good" whisky did. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's figures will be accepted by both "wets" and "drys." They show a reduction of one-third in deaths from poisonous liquor as compared with 1920.

Bird House Contest Race Nears End

The last week of the Sun-Tele Bird House Club's prize contest has begun,

With orders coming in from hundreds of boys and girls who, to obtain Christmas money, sold New Reader subscriptions to The Sun-Telegraph, the final counting will include those received by next Saturday.

The sales can go on after that day, with the 50 cent bonus for each order. But the total number of orders sent in before Saturday will be the deciding factors in the winning of the 28 cash prizes.

The race is still fast and furious. The girls are near the boys at the top of the heap, and it is doubtful today who has a place and who hasn't in the extra money prizes. This will not be decided until five more days have passed.

Sell all possible, however, for even if prizes cannot be won, there will always be the 50 cent bonus for every New Reader subscription.

And, remember, only five more days for the prize contest. If out of blanks, write or phone the manager of The Sun-Telegraph Bird House Club, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PERFUMES

PERFUMES tactfully chosen are gifts beyond price . . . combining the significance of flowers and the worth of jewels . . . in a subtle tribute to feminine beauty and charm. Here is a list of possibilities . . . classified in a way to enable you to identify perfume with person . . . as readily as you would choose the proper flowers.

If You Would Give Her Orchids

Exotic, luxurious, fragile flowers . . . dark and mysterious perfumes, strange, intangible, delicately alluring, like these:

Caron's "Narcisse Noir" (Black Narcissus)
Worth's "Dans la Nuit" (In the Night)
Ybry's "Mon Ame" (My Soul)
Roger and Gallet's "Le Jade"
Coty's "Ambre Antique"
Lelong's "Parfum A"
Gabilla's "Xantho"
Piver's "Misti"

If You Would Give Her Chrysanthemums

Most vital and stately of flowers . . . hardy . . . colorful . . . showy . . . The perfumes for this type are vibrant with life, if just a trifle haughty:

Ybry's "Desir du Coeur," (Heart's Desire)
Isabey's "Bleu de Chine (Chinese Blue)
D'Orsay's "Le Dandy"
Vigny's "Le Golliwogg"
Coty's "Le Jacee"
Mury's "Amadis"

If You Would Give Her Gardenias

Classic flowers, lovely and a little cold . . . aloof and proud . . . These perfumes are expressive of just such severe beauty:

D'Orsay's "Toujours Fidele" (Always Faithful)
Ybry's "Femme de Paris" (Lady of Paris)
Caron's "Nuit de Noel" (Christmas Eve)
Houbigant's "Subtilite"
Coty's "Jasmine"
Piver's "Rocroy"

If You Would Give Her Violets

A dainty flower . . . unobtrusive and very feminine. Light-some odors would be most apt to appeal to the woman who likes violets:

Houbigant's "La Belle Saison" (The Lovely Season)
Caron's "Les Pois de Senteur" (Sweet Peas)
Caron's "N'Aimez Que Moi" (Love Only Me)
Mury's "Le Narcisse Bleu" (Blue Narcissus)
Coty's "Muguet" (Lilies-of-the-Valley)
Lelong's "Parfum B"
Mury's "Patricia"

If She Loves Old-Fashioned Flowers

Cheerful and gay . . . impersonal . . . frank and sincere, but highly spiced and not in the least obvious or uninteresting She'll like these:

Worth's "Vers le Jour" (Toward the Day)
Gabilla's "Mon Cheri" (My Dear)
Lelong's "Parfum C"
Kerkoff's "Djer-Kiss"
Raymond's "Mimzy"
Coty's L'Origan"
Gabilla's "Moda"
Coty's "Styx"

Almost Everyone Loves Roses

A flower that is equally appropriate to give to a young woman or an older one . . . And there are perfumes as universal in their appeal:

Roger and Gallet's "Fleur d' Amour" (Flowers of Love)
Houbigant's "Quelques Fleurs" (Some Flowers)
Jodelle Parfum D (Exclusive with Horne's)
Corday's "Femme de Jour" (Lady of Day)
Houbigant's "Ideal"
Coty's "Paris"

50 MI. OF ROADS REBUILT BY COUNTY

More than 50 miles of county roads have been reconstructed by the maintenance division of the County Road Bureau during 1927, the most important year's work in its history, according to a statement issued by Director Norman F. Brown of the County Department of Public Works. This completes the program of road construction for the year, with 50 miles planned at a cost of $1,000,000, and the work will be suspended over the winter period.

In addition to the resurfacing of roads, many of the roads had the high crowns removed and the necessary drainage work done and subsurface changes made, including the installation of new drains and culverts. Practically all of the roads reconstructed have been widened, while curves have been banked and other improvements made. Based on a 16-foot width the amount of asphalt laid has been 45.91 miles, including roads in all sections of the county, and in addition the Linhart road in the South Park, 1.25 miles, was treated with the penetration method, and 3.05 miles of other roads resurfaced. It was stated that the purchase and proper location of new asphalt plants has proved a great benefit in the work.

Besides the 59 applications for pardons 27 other prisoners are asking rehearings.

HOLD TWO WOMEN IN THEFT OF FUR COATS

COURTS TO SIFT 3 SLAYINGS, ARSON RING

Three murder trials and an important case involving conspiracy and arson are listed for this week in Criminal Court on one of the largest schedules of cases in a number of months, with 198 defendants listed for trial.

Four alleged members of a widespread arson ring, Samuel Friedman, Simon Rosenthal, Harry Frank and Meyer Letwin, the latter two of Webster avenue, are listed for trial Tuesday on seven charges of conspiracy, one charge of arson and one charge of attempting to burn a building to defraud an insurance company.

The state charges that Friedman solicited business of firing stores and approached Mrs. C. M. Deverts, proprietor of a millinery store at 411 East Ohio street, North Side, with such a proposal on July 21. The proprietor's daughter, employed by the Board of Fire Underwriters, reported the proposal to Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr, who secreted himself in the store, heard arrangements for the fire and later caught Frank and Letwin in the store, preparing to set it on fire, according to the prosecution.

The state also charges a conspiracy to burn the dwelling of Miss Mabel Yocum, in Pressly street. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner will conduct the prosecution, and defendants are represented by Attorneys Rody P. Marshall, Harry A. Estep and Louis Little.

Vincenzo Ciccia and Oreste Delforte will be placed on trial today charged with murder in the death of Rocco Famia, 22, a crane operator, of rear 5113 Lytle street, shot in his home the morning of August 26.

Charles Crivelli, 60, of 2309 Mulberry way, will also be placed on trial on a murder charge today, accused of fatally shooting Regis McFadden, 21, a fruit packer, of 2950 Cabinet street, early the morning of May 1. It is alleged that the boy, with several companions, attempted to loot the home of Crivelli.

William Biseck, Sr., of 2321 Penn avenue, will be placed on trial on Wednesday charged with murder. He is accused of shooting his son, William Paul Biseck, 24, a bartender, in their home early on the morning of July 13, during a quarrel over money.

Charles Gerwig is listed for trial Wednesday on a charge of involuntary manslaughter, accused of crushing to death with his automobile Melvin Hackett, 5, son of Edward D. Hackett, of Hodgkiss street, North Side.

Albert Stein will be tried Thursday on a charge of involuntary manslaughter for the death of Matthew Dombroski, 4, of 2429 Carson street, South Side, the evening of March 22, crushed by a truck in front of his home.

Why Bother With Birds-One Shot Kills Two Deer

By International News Service.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 12.—Killing two birds with one stone is an old saying, but when it comes to shooting two bucks with one shot—well, that's something to think about.

H. S. Estridge, hunting near Seicnos, B. C., spied a fine buck in the thicket. He took good aim and fired and saw the animal fall. When he reached the spot he found he had killed two bucks with a single shot.

"A braggart, a double-crosser, an Indian giver, and a self-crowned Napoleon"

These are some of the things Ruth Holmes Remus has to say of her stepfather, George Remus, the bootleg king, who shot down her mother and is now on trial for his life.

Ruth Remus as she appeared in court.

Ruth Remus' Own Story has been secured for exclusive publication in Pittsburgh in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

This statement from Remus' stepdaughter is detailed and vivid.

It tears the mask from the supposedly millionaire bootlegger, and pictures him as having a startling dual personality.

A tumultous family life, the truth about the famous New Year's Eve party, the myth of his millions—these are a few of the features of Ruth's revelations.

POOR WEATHER DELAYS FLIER 10 DAYS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh probably will not be able to take off for Mexico City for another 10 days, he said, after consultation today with weather bureau officials and officers of the naval hydrographic office.

Informed that a low pressure area existed over the Rio Grande, the trans-Atlantic flier said it probably would be 10 days or even two weeks before he could start the journey from Bolling Field here.

The Lone Eagle of the air spent Sunday afternoon at the field, going over the plane with Army experts and checking every strut and stay. "Lindy" gave his famous Whirlwind motor his undivided attention. It is the same bit of mechanism that carried him to France in his epochal flight, and then around the United States without a falter.

The motor has already been "okayed" and needs but a final tuning up for the 2,000-mile journey.

Lindbergh will make the flight entirely over land. He estimated, as he studied maps of the route, that he will reach Mexico City in from 20 to 24 hours after the hop-off, depending upon wind currents.

There has been no announcement as yet, whether the flight will be attempted as a non-stop trip. This will probably depend upon weather conditions. The impression at Bolling Field was that Lindbergh will take on enough gas for the entire trip and if the weather is right, will keep his plane roaring southward until he lands in the Mexican capital.

From Washington he will swing over the Southern states to Texas, then point the nose of his ship straight for Mexico City and keep going.

Two of the visitors, Harry Janson and John Conley, were fined $50 and four were discharged. Phillips did not appear at the hearing, but came in later and was discharged.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Life of Younger Social Set During Holiday Season to Be Function After Function

FROM today until long after the holiday season is over the life of the younger set of the social world will be just one ball and dinner and luncheon and theater party after another. There are at least two or three "major" society events planned for each day throughout this week, and with the arrival of the school set at the end of this week and during next, these affairs will be greatly multiplied.

In addition to the usual school set affairs during the holidays, there will be many entertainments for the buds who are going to college.

Lucy Coleman Ward, debutante daughter of the T. Coleman Wards, will arrive home Saturday from Northampton, Mass., where she is a junior at Smith. She will return to college on January 3. During her vacation, Lucy will forget her responsibilities as a student, and become a carefree debbie. She will "come out" at a tea dance her parents will give on December 23 in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association Annex.

And then in addition to her debut and her attendance at the affairs planned for the other debutantes and members of the school set, she will be guest of honor at a luncheon Mrs. Frank B. Gordon of Ellsworth avenue, will give in the Twentieth Century Club on Monday afternoon, December 19; at another luncheon Mrs. J. Merrill Wright will give on December 21 in the Pittsburgh Golf Club; and at a dinner Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Kernohan of Pembroke place will give on December 31 in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Mrs. Wright, by the way, is a popular hostess with the debutantes.

Another bud who will "come out" during the holiday season is Eloise Hampton Wilson, the charming daughter of the Robert Lee Wilsons of South Fairmount avenue. Eloise, who is also a college student as well as a debutante, will arrive home on Friday from South Hadley, Mass., where she is a student at Wellesley. And, as was announced before, her coming out party will be in the form of a tea dance, on December 31, to be given by her parents in the Twentieth Century Club.

Now that the holiday season, for which social leaders have been making plans for sometime, is upon us, the matrons of society are beginning to devise ways and means for continuing the social whirl far into January.

One of the first dates taken in the new year is January 3, when Mrs. Raymond Willey of Beacon street will give a tea in the Longue Vue Country Club, and the guest of her honor will be her debutante niece, Mary Currier Lewis, daughter of the James Edward Lewis of Aylesboro avenue. As at all the teas, there will be an orchestra, and that usually means the young folks will dance.

The Lewis family is anticipating the holiday season, for in addition to having a much-feted debutante member, two sons of the family will be home from school for the holidays to take part in the Yuletide festivities. Jack Currier Lewis will be home from Yale the latter part of the week, and the prep-school son, James Edward Lewis, Jr., will be home from the Hill School at Pottstown.

Miss La Salle Dorrance, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance, of South Negley avenue, will return home December 18 from Charleston, S. C., where she is attending school. She will bring with her Miss Marion Goodwin, daughter of Mrs. S. H. Goodwin, of Charleston, and Miss Mary Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sutton, of Charleston and Beaumont, Tex., who will remain over the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Roberts, of Ingram, announce the engagement of their niece, Miss Ruth Rhea McKee, to Alexander P. Craig, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Craig, of Ingram. Miss McKee is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Craig is a University of Pittsburgh man.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Perry Storer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Storer, of the East End, and James Claire Liggett, will take place Monday, December 26, at 3 o'clock in the First Unitarian Church. A reception at 6818 Reynolds street will follow the ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Elda Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ford, of Beechview boulevard, and William Thomas of Homestead was solemnized Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Ford home by the Rev. W. M. Douglass. The bride wore peach satin and carried white chrysanthemums showered with rosebuds. Her maid of honor, Miss Bessie Collins, appeared in Nile green taffeta and her flowers were pink chrysanthemums. Oliver Thomas was his brother's best man and the ushers included Theodore H. Oberheim and E. B. Gruber. Mrs. W. H. Collins sang and Miss Rhoda Thomas played the wedding music. A dinner for 28 followed the ceremony. After an Eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will be at home in Beechwood boulevard.

You remember, do you not, that Eunice Parrish DuPuy, daughter of Mrs. William Avery Atkins, of Indianapolis, is to be the guest during the holidays of her grandparents, the Herbert DuPuys, of Moorewood avenue, and is to come out in Pittsburgh? At the "coming out" tea dance her grandparents will give for her on December 20 in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, members of the Yale University Dramatic Association will be among the guests, I hear.

Another debutante affair of January will be given by Mrs. Taylor Allderdice. The entertainment will be in the form of a luncheon for two of the season's buds, Florence Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright, and Mary Mellon McClung, daughter of the Samuel A. McClungs. The date for the event has not yet been definitely set.

A mixed card party is to be held Thursday night in the South Hills Country Club. The club is planning to give a New Year's Eve party December 30.

QUOTA CLUB OBSERVES EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY

A most attractive affair was the dinner given by the Pittsburgh Quota Club in the William Penn Hotel Saturday night in celebration of the club's eighth anniversary. More than 200 Quotarians and their guests were seated at the gayly decorated tables where at each place there was a bud vase for a favor. Quota birthday cakes, each adorned with eight blue candles, were carried by eight club members attired in crepe paper dresses of blue and gray, Quota colors. Miss Margaret S. Moore, president of the club, welcomed the guests; the invocation was by the Rev. Charles S. Poling, and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton was the speaker. Mrs. Upton was her usual inimitably humorous self. She began with Eve and dwelt on the varying position of women since the time of the first one, concluding seriously with the thought that the woman of today must be worthy of the struggles her predecessors had put forth and must set an example for the women of tomorrow.

An especially pleasant feature of the program was the music furnished by Mrs. Jane Packham Alexander and Miss Hilda Berkey, vocalists, and Nicholas Simon, violinist, Mrs. Grace B. Martin and Mr. John Sedlacek were the accompanists. Frederick G. Rodgers led assembly singing of Quota songs. About 50 out-of-town Quotarians were present, some of them from other states, and the guest list also included representatives of other organizations, among them Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs; Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, of the Allegheny County Civic Club, and Miss Mary Jane Clark, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Eight club members, wearing blue and gray dresses, served as ushers at the luncheon, which was given in the Morrowfield yesterday in honor of the out-of-town Quotarians.

The regular meeting of the club has been moved up one evening, as Miss May Beegle, a member of the organization, has invited the entire membership to be her guests Thursday eveneing to hear the Metropolitan Quartet at Syria Mosque.

An open forum will close the meeting of the Better Magazines Council, which will be held in the Congress of Clubs tomorrow morning. Henry N. Pringle of Washington, D. C., is to be the speaker and his subject, "Practical Problems Presented by Questionable Magazines." Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, accompanied by Mrs. Bertra Bross King, will provide the music.

Mrs. David Thompson and Mrs. Frank Finlay are to be assistant hostesses. Mrs. E. E. Kehew will give a talk on "Quaint Christmas Customs in Other Lands," and Christmas carols will be sung by a group of the club members.

The Christmas program of the Tuesday Musical Club is always an event of special interest. This year it has been arranged in three parts, the first consisting of "The Slumber Songs of the Madonna," the cantata which won the $500 prize for women's voices in the National Federation of Musical Clubs' contest. The words are by Alfrey Noyes and the music by May Strong. The cantata will be presented tomorrow by an ensemble of Tuesday Musical members with violin, 'cello and piano accompaniment. Miss Anne Griffiths is director. Part two of the program will be made up of excerpts from "The Messiah." The symphony will be played by a string ensemble of club members assisted by Victor Saudek, who will conduct, and Christmas carols will make up the third part of the program, Mrs. Ruth Hay Black, Mrs. Anna Laura Cree, Mrs. Anne H. Woestehoff and Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner being the soloists. Mr. Saudek will play a flute obligato.

A Christmas carol program with readings of Christmas stories will be given at the Woman's City Club tea next Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. A quartet composed of Mrs. Emma Albert Bean, Mrs. Arthur B. Whitmarsh will be accompanist for the singer. Mrs. P. E. Henninger, general chairman for the day, is being assisted by Mrs. Marc Darrin, chairman of music, and other members of the club.

AVONNE TAYLOR

Miss Taylor, declared by Florenz Ziegfeld the most beautiful girl ever in the Follies, today entered suit for divorce against her husband, Lewis Gess. Gess was with the Follies, as musical director in 1925, when he and Avonne were married. Two months later they separated. She is on Hollywood movie lots now, but will go to Chicago soon, where the divorce libel is on file.

CELL OPENS FOR JERSEY WIDOW ON CHRISTMAS

By Universal Service.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, sentenced Saturday by Supreme Court Justice Luther Campbell here to serve 10 years at hard labor in the state prison at Trenton following her conviction of manslaughter in connection with the killing of her husband, Dr. William Lilliendahl, last September, will eat Christmas dinner with her son, Alfred, 8 years old, in a room in the home of Sheriff James Cimino here, it was announced last night.

The Sheriff heard Mrs. Lilliendahl's wish that she and her son might be together for Christmas dinner, and that it would not be served in her cell in the county jail. He definitely stated that this could be arranged.

Willis Beach, Vineland poultry farmer, convicted with Mrs. Lilliendahl of the murder of her husband, expressed himself as anxious to go to Trenton and start his sentence as soon as possible. He was visited in his cell at the jail here today by his wife, his son, Roy, and his daughter-in-law.

LAUD M'INERNEY FOR CAPTURES

James L. McInerney, city detective who last week single-handed captured four members of the "Night Rider Gang," who were implicated in more than 100 robberies here, police say, has spent a busy week receiving the congratulations of friends, city officials and of strangers. Scores of telephone calls have been received by the sleuth and numerous visitors have called upon him at work. He also has received letters from total strangers who show their appreciation of his bravery. McInerney has modestly acknowledged the compliments, saying that he only "saw his duty and performed it."

Eyes Megaphone

MILTON SILLS, like lawyers who hope to become supreme court justices, doesn't want to be an actor all his life, even though a good one. It is said he plans to become a director at the expiration of his present contract.

Milton Sills Plans to Quit as Player and Become Director, According to Filmland Rumor

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.

WHEN Milton Sills' contract with First National expires next year, we understand he may be persuaded by that organization to turn his hand at directing.

Milton has evinced more than casual interest in the megaphone. He told us a year or so ago, whilst starring in pictures, in New York, that one of these days he would forsake grease paint for a director's worries,

At present, he is preparing to begin "Burning Daylight," a Jack London story, which Charles Brabin will direct. Doris Kenyon has been assigned the heroine role.

Following this cinema, Sills will make "The Barker," adapted from the play of that name. Betty Compson has been signed to play the "Naughty" girl. The other role remains to be cast.

We hear reports that "The Barker" may be made prior to "Burning Daylight" in the event Colleen Moore's next story, "Lilac Time," is not in shape soon. George Fitzmaurice and John McCormack, chief of the Moore unit, have spent the past few days in Arrow Head, working on "Lilac Time," and attempting to whip the piece into shape satisfactory to them both.

Meantime, production has been held up. Should the story elude cinematic construction, "Lilac Time" will be allotted as Colleen's next picture, following one she will do in its place, which is both possible and probable. Fitz demands a strong story before plunging into the heavy

'LOVELORN' NOW FILM THEME

Beatrice Fairfax's advice to the lovelorn, an enormously popular newspaper feature for more than 20 years, has been a big factor in the moulding of the lives of thousands of young people, some of whom only think they are in love but many of whom really are in love.

Most of the many missives sent to this columnist deserve, and receive, good advice. In most cases it is acted upon with splendid results to those who have confided their sentimental worries to her.

It is positively known that in many instances this advice has helped young girls and boys, especially the girls, to mould their characters in a manner that makes for good wives, good homes and good American citizenship.

Thousands of young people who have confided their troubles to Miss Fairfax will realize the benefit of this sincere advice when they see Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer's new film production for Cosmopolitan, featuring Sally O'Neil and her sister, Molly O'Day, soon to be shown in Pittsburgh. The story was written by the columnist and has been adapted to the screen by Bradley King and directed by John P. McCarthy, who made "Becky" in which Miss O'Neil also had the featured role.

In the new picture Larry Kent has the leading romantic male role and Allan Forrest is seen as the young-man-about-town with his flashy roadster. Kate Price and Mathilda Comont also are members of the big cast.

expense of production. He also will direct "The Barker."

One hears much discussion as to who is the youngest director in the movies. What does age matter, so long as salary compensates ability?

Mervyn Leroy, for instance, has been frequently heralded the youngest of directors. Mebbe Mervyn is. At all events he ranks with the successful. He has made two films for First National, both hailed by the box office.

Mervyn will direct a screen version of the popular cartoon, "Harold Teen," for Robert Kane. "Harold" goes into production early in January. There's a chance that Arthur Lake, of Universal, will enact the title role.

Lupino Lane, acrobatic comedian from across the Atlantic, has a midget valet and man-of-all-work named George. Lupino came across him in London, and was so struck by his acrobatic ability that he engaged him. He works frequently in the comedian's educational funsters.

The other day Eddie Kauffman, of the Educational organization, received a 'phone call from an independent producing company, asking if he had a monkey the troupe could borrow. Seems they were making a circus picture, and the monkey became ill and couldn't work. They needed one for a few more scenes.

"I'll let you have George," Eddie had a bright idea. "George is a midget and could squeeze into a monkey disguise." So George turned monk for two days and his bosses were highly pleased with his antics.

On December 26 Marshall (Mickey) Neilan and his wife, Florence Sweet, start for New York to sail for London. Mickey has contracted with a British film company to direct one picture, featuring Gertrude Lawrence, popular musical comedy and revue star. (Remember her in "Charlot's Revue"?)

Mickey showed us a cable from Miss Lawrence, expressing her enthusiasm at appearing in a picture directed by him, and anticipating a conference when he arrived.

Mr. Neilan will produce only one film over there. He returns to continue his work under the First National banner where, at present, he is completing "Do It Again," a circus film co-starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes.

WHAT THEATERS ARE SHOWING

ring the versatile Syd Chaplin. The Vitaphone program will present J. J. Triggs and John Maxwell in jazz numbers.

The Earl Carroll "Vanities" will be the Christmas week attraction in the Nixon, opening with a matinee December 26. Featured in the cast are Moran & Mack, "The Two Black Crows;" Johnny Dooley and Julius Tannen, the debonair jester. Also in the company is a Pittsburgh boy, Brian McDonald, lyric tenor.

That hardy musical comedy, "Rose-Marie," will come to the Alvin for an engagement of one week only, beginning Monday evening, December 19, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. The seat sale will open Thursday morning.

"Saturday's Children," which will be the Christmas week bill in the Pitt, takes its title from the old nursery rhyme, the seventh line of which runs: "Saturday's child must work for its living." Maxwell Anderson is said to have selected it for the title of the play before he began writing it.

"THE KING'S HENCHMAN" TO BE SUNG TOMORROW

The principals to be heard in "The King's Henchman" in Syria Mosque tomorrow night include Marie Sundelius, Henri Scott, Alfredo Valenti, Constance Hejda, Rafaelo Diaz and Dudley Marwick, with Jacques Samossoud conducting. There will be an orchestra of 50 and a chorus of 50. Those who had the privilege of hearing the opera in the Metropolitan last season attest that words can give but a very vague idea of the power of the plot, the score of which is by Deems Taylor. Edna St. Vincent Millay wrote the libretti.

Time To Aid Neediest Is Growing Short

With but two weeks remaining before Christmas, the campaign for the collection of a fund for the Twenty Neediest Cases of poverty and suffering in Pittsburgh today entered an intensive stage. Those who have contemplated contributing to the fund but have put off the sending of their checks will now attend to it. Others who have given little or no heed to the matter will now consider it. The season of giving has arrived, and the Christmas spirit demands that the poor and the unfortunate, as well as the members of one's own family, be remembered.

Those who wish to show their good will towards men can choose no more fitting method than to send a donation for the relief of the Twenty Neediest Cases—cases of families in which the bread winner is incapacitated or other misfortune, and innocent children and poor old folk are suffering from lack of food, lack of clothing, lack of fuel, lack of medicine and doctors' services. Provided a fund sufficiently large is raised these families will be tided through their suffering, supported until the wage earner is again receiving an income, and thus saved from disruption.

Many families similarly situated were put on their feet again through a similar campaign last Christmas. Here is a typical example of the good done by the fund. A widow and her eight children were given adequate care until last August, when the Mother' Assistance Fund became responsible for them. The Associated Charities, which supervised the case, reports on it as follows:

"This is another widow's family in which the morale was maintained until they could receive help from the mothers' assistance fund. During the time they were under the care of the Associated Charities the mother's health and the general condition of the family improved in a most satisfactory way. To give to this family was a particularly good investment. The older children are all bright and are doing very well in school. The 11-year-old girl is particularly brilliant. It is a privilege to help a family where all co-operate, as did this mother and children."

The Twenty Neediest Cases have been reported by the Associated Charities, the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America. Checks and money orders should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, or, if preferred, to one of the societies named.

All of the 20 cases were described in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph of November 27. One case will be repeated each day. Here is case No. 15:

Mr. W served in the World War in France. Upon his return he worked for a number of years before he felt the effects of the serious hardships which he suffered. A government allowance came to him for a year, but his claim was then disallowed, for the doctors decided that his present pitiable condition was due to causes other than war service. His savings are long since entirely gone, and he will never be able to work. There are four children, aged 12, 6, 2 and 2 months. The rent is $25 a month. It takes $11 a week for food, and two quarts of milk a day, besides fuel and incidentals, totaling about $80 a month.

(Reported by the Associated Charities).

Case No. 16 will be described tomorrow.

BERKEY H. BOYD SUCCUMBS AT SCOTTDALE

By International News Service.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 12.—Berkey H. Boyd, 49, one of the county's most widely known politicians of the younger generation, died yesterday at the residence of his sister, Mrs. C. S. Wiley, in Scottdale, according to word received here today.

With Boyd's death, the county lost the last of the three county commissioners who served two terms together, being elected for four years in 1915 and 1919. One of Boyd's colleagues, George W. Deeds, of Ligonier died last week following an operation. The other, W. Dick Reamer, died a year ago.

Boyd resigned as commissioner in February, 1923, to accept the appointment as superintendent of public grounds and buildings tendered him by former Gov. Gifford Pinchot and held that post until June, 1923, when he was appointed state secretary of property and supplies.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon.

A can of oil was nearby.

112 Are Rescued On Sinking Liner

CAMPBELL RIVER, B. C., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Driven aground in a raging snowstorm, the liner Northwestern today was reported to be rapidly filling with water while Capt. Jock Livingston and 26 of the crew remained aboard after the 112 passengers and 49 of the ship's personnel had been rescued and taken to shelter in this summer resort. The belief was expressed that the $750,000 vessel might be a total loss.

The Northwestern, bound from Seattle to Alaska in the service of the Alaska Steamship Company, was wrecked off Cape Mudge, at the entrance of Seymour Narrows, 10 miles south of here, about 5 oclo'ck yesterday morning.

For seven hours, the passengers, most of whom were Alaskans en route home from the states, anxiously paced the decks of the stricken vessel as a terrific easterly gale lashed the waters to a fury and sent a drenching spray over the ship. Water rushing in through a hole in the hull filled two holds of the boat and flooded the engine room. The S O S of the disabled craft sent rescue vessels hurrying to its aid from Victoria, B. C., but the first to reach the scene was the halibut schooner, Explorer.

Bill Warren Finally Gets Courage and Tells Ann That He Loves Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann and Georgie Hastings, sisters, live together in Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house. Ann, the elder, works in a factory and Georgie in an insurance office. Ann is proud of her sister's good looks and charming manners and pleads with her to accept the attentions of Bill Warren, who is madly in love with her, and to have nothing more to do with Ernest Brooks, a chance acquaintance who has been rushing her. Bill makes a confidant of Ann and proposes to Georgie, who refuses him. Ann's solicitude for her sister ends in a quarrel between the two, and Ann becomes conscious that she herself is fond of Bill, and the day after the quarrel he asks her to have lunch with him. During lunch he shows he is still devoted to Georgie, and Ann asks him why he doesn't call on her sister that evening. Bill comes to the boarding house and after waiting for Georgie sees her arrive with Ernest. Georgie vindictively tells Bill she doesn't care if she never sees him again, and in desperation he turns to Ann and asks her if she would be willing to go out with him now and then. Ann discovers that Bill has been drinking and shows her great disappointment in him, but resolves to do all she can to help him. Meanwhile Georgie, in a spirit of adventure, goes to call on Ernest in his studios. He proposes a trip abroad with her, promising to marry her when they get to Italy. Georgie leaves his studio, telling him that was impossible.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

IT WAS said, it was done, it was complete and final. "Oh, Bill." Her own voice trembled. Suddenly she was in his arms. He kissed her unresisting mouth fiercely. "Can't you love me?" he whispered.

Even now with the knowledge of her triumph making her heart glad, she could not admit everything.

"I think I—I might grow to care for you," she whispered back.

But when she was in her room, and sat down there in the silence, she wondered why suddenly things seemed so much flatter than she had expected. She felt no joy now, only a dull depression, which the thought of her successful campaign could not drive away.

CHAPTER XXIX.

WHILE Ann was pondering over her winning of Bill, Georgie, in Ernest's stateroom was hearing the steamer's siren and frantically realizing she might be carried to sea.

Ernest faced her—Mrs. Mountford had fled. He came toward her.

"Georgie," he pleaded.

"Don't touch me!" she said, "what a fool I was ever imagining that you—" But she could not finish. Fury and humiliation seemed to choke her.

His hand shot out, gripped her wrist. He dragged her close to him.

"You're coming whether you want to or not," he said.

She fought herself free. Ernest stood regarding her.

"Oh, well—if that's the way you feel—" He was cool enough now, "Allow me—is this your bag?"

He opened the door and Georgie was conscious that she was running along the deck breathless, the bag in her hand.

She saw the crowd on the pier, waving handkerchiefs, calling indistinguishable things. Here and there a face stood out vividly in the flare of the nearest light. Here and there whole groups were obscured in the blackness of the pier.

"Oh, let me off! I've got to get off!"

People were staring at her. There was a little stir of sound and talk. She saw a man in uniform hurrying down the deck. The steel plate that guarded the gangway was lowered again, the gangplank swung out. She went down it alone, feeling ashamed and frightened with all those eyes watching her, those voices speculating about her, wondering how it was she had been nearly carried off.

"Don't try that again, young lady." It was the elderly port captain who warned her.

She did not answer. She was glad to make her escape. She walked quickly with her brain feverishly active, trying to get away from the crowd. But for a long time she did not dare meet any eye for fear she would be looked at curiously. It was minutes before she began to breathe easier, minutes, years.

Then at last, scarcely knowing how she had gotten there, she found herself climbing the stairs at Mrs. O'Leary's. She felt dull and lifeless. She didn't want to think. She wanted only to see Ann, good patient Ann, and chat of little, friendly, familiar things. Ann had been right about Ernest Brooks—right from the very start. Married—and never letting her know. If it hadn't been for the woman who called herself Mrs. Mountford, Georgie knew she would be on the boat with him now. Luck—it was really only luck that had saved her.

She wondered if Ann were in their room. If she were she would certainly think it queer to see her carrying her bag — and then the note she had written flashed across her mind. Suppose Ann had already read it!

She set the bag down in the hall and slowly opened the bedroom door. Ann was sitting there, and Georgie saw at once that luck had again been with her. Ann had evidently not yet found the note.

She wandered over toward the bureau, making a pretense of fixing her hair, and quickly picked up the envelope.

With a sigh she sat down. What a relief it was to be back with Ann, with all her gentleness and sweetness! She was conscious of a feeling of peace. After all, peace meant happiness.

"Ann! I'm awfully glad we're together tonight,' she said impulsively. "If I didn't have you here, I don't know what I'd do."

"What's happened?" Ann asked quietly.

"Nothing. Only you happened to be right about Ernest Brooks."

"You mean you've quarreled with him. You're not going to see him any more."

"No. Never again."

"Oh, Georgie, I'm so glad. Do you really mean it?"

"I have to mean it. He sailed for Italy tonight."

There was a long silence, and Georgie's thoughts revolved slowly, summing up this experience that was already a thing of the past, and trying to judge the future in the light of it.

Sitting there, thinking about what her life was like, and what it might become, she dreamily turned her attention to Bill.

Ann was sewing now, working in her quiet fashion, apparently lost in the task.

Georgie went on in her thoughts, and again and again they returned to Bill. She compared his honesty with Ernest Brooks' lies, his natural friendliness with Ernest's scarcely concealed contempt.

She began to smile, remembering Bill. How badly she had treated him after all. Fortunately he was still keeping in touch with Ann. She would see him again, show that she really did like him. And Ann was right about him—just as she was right about everything.

A little tenderness came into Georgie's heart. Bill had asked her to marry him. She could imagine herself as Bill's wife, a small house, pleasant things to do, pleasant and peaceful ways of life . . . Bill's wife.

A little smile touched her lips. How differently she thought about everything now! Her experience with Ernest had somehow made her wise and sensible. She turned suddenly.

"Ann."

"Yes."

"You know how you always used to talk to me about Bill?"

"Yes."

"Well, I—perhaps you're right about Bill. Just as you were right about Ernest. I think I'd like to make up with him, see him again, become friends . . ."

Ann's hands trembled. The sewing dropped into her lap.

"What do you mean, Georgie?"

"I mean I've been a fool not to realize what you realized right along. Bill's nicer than any man I've ever met. I see now for the first time."

She spoke in a low voice. She noticed that Ann was not looking at her, that Ann's own voice, queerly enough, was not quite steady.

"But, Georgie, do you—that is, you don't love Bill. You don't really love him."

"But I do—I really do. I feel now as if I'd always loved him and just realized it. What's the matter, Ann?"

"Nothing. Nothing at all. I'm just very tired. I think I'll go to bed."

"But I wanted to talk about this to you."

"Tomorrow. We'll talk about it tomorrow, Georgie."

Ann lay down but not to sleep. With the memory of Bill's kiss, his words, before her, she was stunned by this revelation from Georgie. And something troubled her—something that would not be denied.

She knew what it was—she knew that in spite of everything she doubted whether Bill really cared for her, whether, after all, he didn't love Georgie, who did not need to win him through any strategem at all. She was still pondering over this thought when Georgie turned out the lights and quietly opening the door brought in her bag. Then she slipped into bed.

In the morning Ann wrote as she had written before, asking for advice. That afternoon she met Bill and did not come in until late. When she did, Georgie was already sleeping. Ann sighed with relief. She wanted to put off that moment when she must face the truth with her sister. And first she must get the reply to her letter.

At last it reached her.

She read it—and then with sudden determination—she made her decision.

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered at this point—I mean I'm actually ALL aGOG over this odd PSYchoanalysis stuff which that odd soul Mr. FREUD or something thought UP, because I mean MOTHer, you see, had this BOOK about it and she was SIMply TERrified after READing it because you see it sort of inTERprets all your DREAMS which are your exPRESsions or something, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, it's a simply FAScinating SUBject because this BOOK, my dear, just sort of comes right OUT and SAYS things without BEATing around the BUSHwah or anything. I mean it's so sort of FRANK and everything that MOTHer was practicably ready to ROLL over and BUTter herself with emBARrassment because of course it is REALly rather soPHISticated STUFF but, my dear, when I started in to sort of psychoAnalyze NOIsy I REALly thought I'd have hysTERics because, you see, there is ONE thing about this psychoanALysis that is POSitively perVERted. Because I mean when you psychoANalyze anybody it is apt to reLEASE their LIBido which makes them do odd THINGS and, my dear, when I sort of approached NOIsy with FIRM intentions of psyching him it must have sort of reLEASED his LIBido because, my dear, he had the NERVE to try and NECK me—can you bear it, my dear?"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

I OFTEN have had occasion to marvel at the almost psychic powers of observation which Lillian possesses, so I was not startled when, as we followed Philip Veritzen and the inn proprietor up the stairs to the topmost balcony, I heard her murmur:

"Don't let him spoil your day, Madge. Of course he's deliberately pulling this stuff to see if he can't get your temper to scale the fence, but try to tether your nanny if you can."

Mr. Veritzen was far enough in advance of us for me to be sure that no word of her carefully lowered mumbling could be heard by him. My answer was brief, and, I believe, equally inaudible.

"Don't worry," I said, "I've put on an extra triple strength chain."

"At-a-girl!" she whispered, as Mr. Veritzen turned and began to descend the steps toward us.

"I'm sorry," he said as he reached us. "I didn't realize I had left you so far behind."

"We'll try to forgive you this once," Lillian laughed, and I was grateful for the rejoinder. I was trying to recall something which her muttered warning to me had suggested, and when it at last came to my mind, I was in no mood for speech.

It was a quip attributed to Philip Veritzen which I had no doubt that he had uttered.

"Unless he's seen her in a temper, a man never knows whether a woman's worth the effort to win her," he had said, and the atrocious little speech had been widely quoted as indicative of the philosophy of the great producer, whom I knew more than one cynic had called the "Great Philanderer."

Was it possible that he was trying that experiment—with a sudden rush of common sense and an abashed scoring of my egotism, I came back to sanity as we ascended the last steps of the balcony. But the prints of my finger nails which I had dug into my palms in those seconds of intense anger remained for a long time.

"Now," said Mr. Veritzen, conducting us to the balcony railing, "here is a real view."

I agreed with him as I followed his gaze. The hill upon which the inn was built sheered off so precipitously just beyond the balcony where we were standing that if there had not been a solid rock formation beneath the grass carpet, the building would have tumbled into the ravine just below us.

Across the steeply sloping ravine there was a level stretch of ground along which ran the highway. A few feet beyond the ground began to dip again, and continued in a downward sweeping slope to the shores of the distant Hudson.

It was a view breath-taking in its beauty, and I stood silently reveling in it until Lillian touched me on the shoulder.

"You can't get jagged on views so early in the day," she laughed. "Come on, let's get primped up for dinner."

I followed her into a beautifully appointed room with mirrors and dressing tables, containing, it seemed to me, the stock-in-trade of a beauty parlor. We had the place to ourselves, save for the attendant, at the far end of the room, and when we had removed the dust of our journey, and given a renovating touch to the hair and complexions, Lillian, making sure that the woman was out of earshot, whispered:

"You simply must pull yourself together, Madge. I know what's eating you—that beastly old epigram about angry women, which I have no manner of doubt he uttered. But for the affection of Abraham, don't let him see that any action or word of his can affect you. There's trouble enough ahead for you with that lad without going out of your way to meet it."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

ABOUT the last time a man says "I will" is at the altar; after that, it's mostly, "I won't!"

* * *

Not to have fallen in love foolishly, recklessly and blindly, at least once, is to have missed the glamor and the glory of the greatest thrill that life has to offer you.

* * *

When a man finds himself wedged dangerously between two jealous women, he stands perfectly still, closes his eyes and waits for heaven or the first woman to strike.

HELEN ROWLAND

When a woman decides that she wants to be an "inspiration" to a man, it is usually a sign that she has tried being a temptation—and failed.

A generous spirit is a beautiful thing; but these modern girls should realize that a toothbrush, a table napkin and a HUSBAND are three things which not even the most liberal-minded woman wants to share with any other woman.

In order to know all the good and all the bad in a man, a woman must have loved him—and then gotten over it sufficiently to like him.

Woman's freedom did not come in the form of a ballot or even of a bob and a short skirt. It came, and always will come, in a pay-envelope!

A girl's frank and open-faced devotion always fills a man with admiration—and gratitude. Admiration for himself—and gratitude to Heaven, for having made him so wonderful!

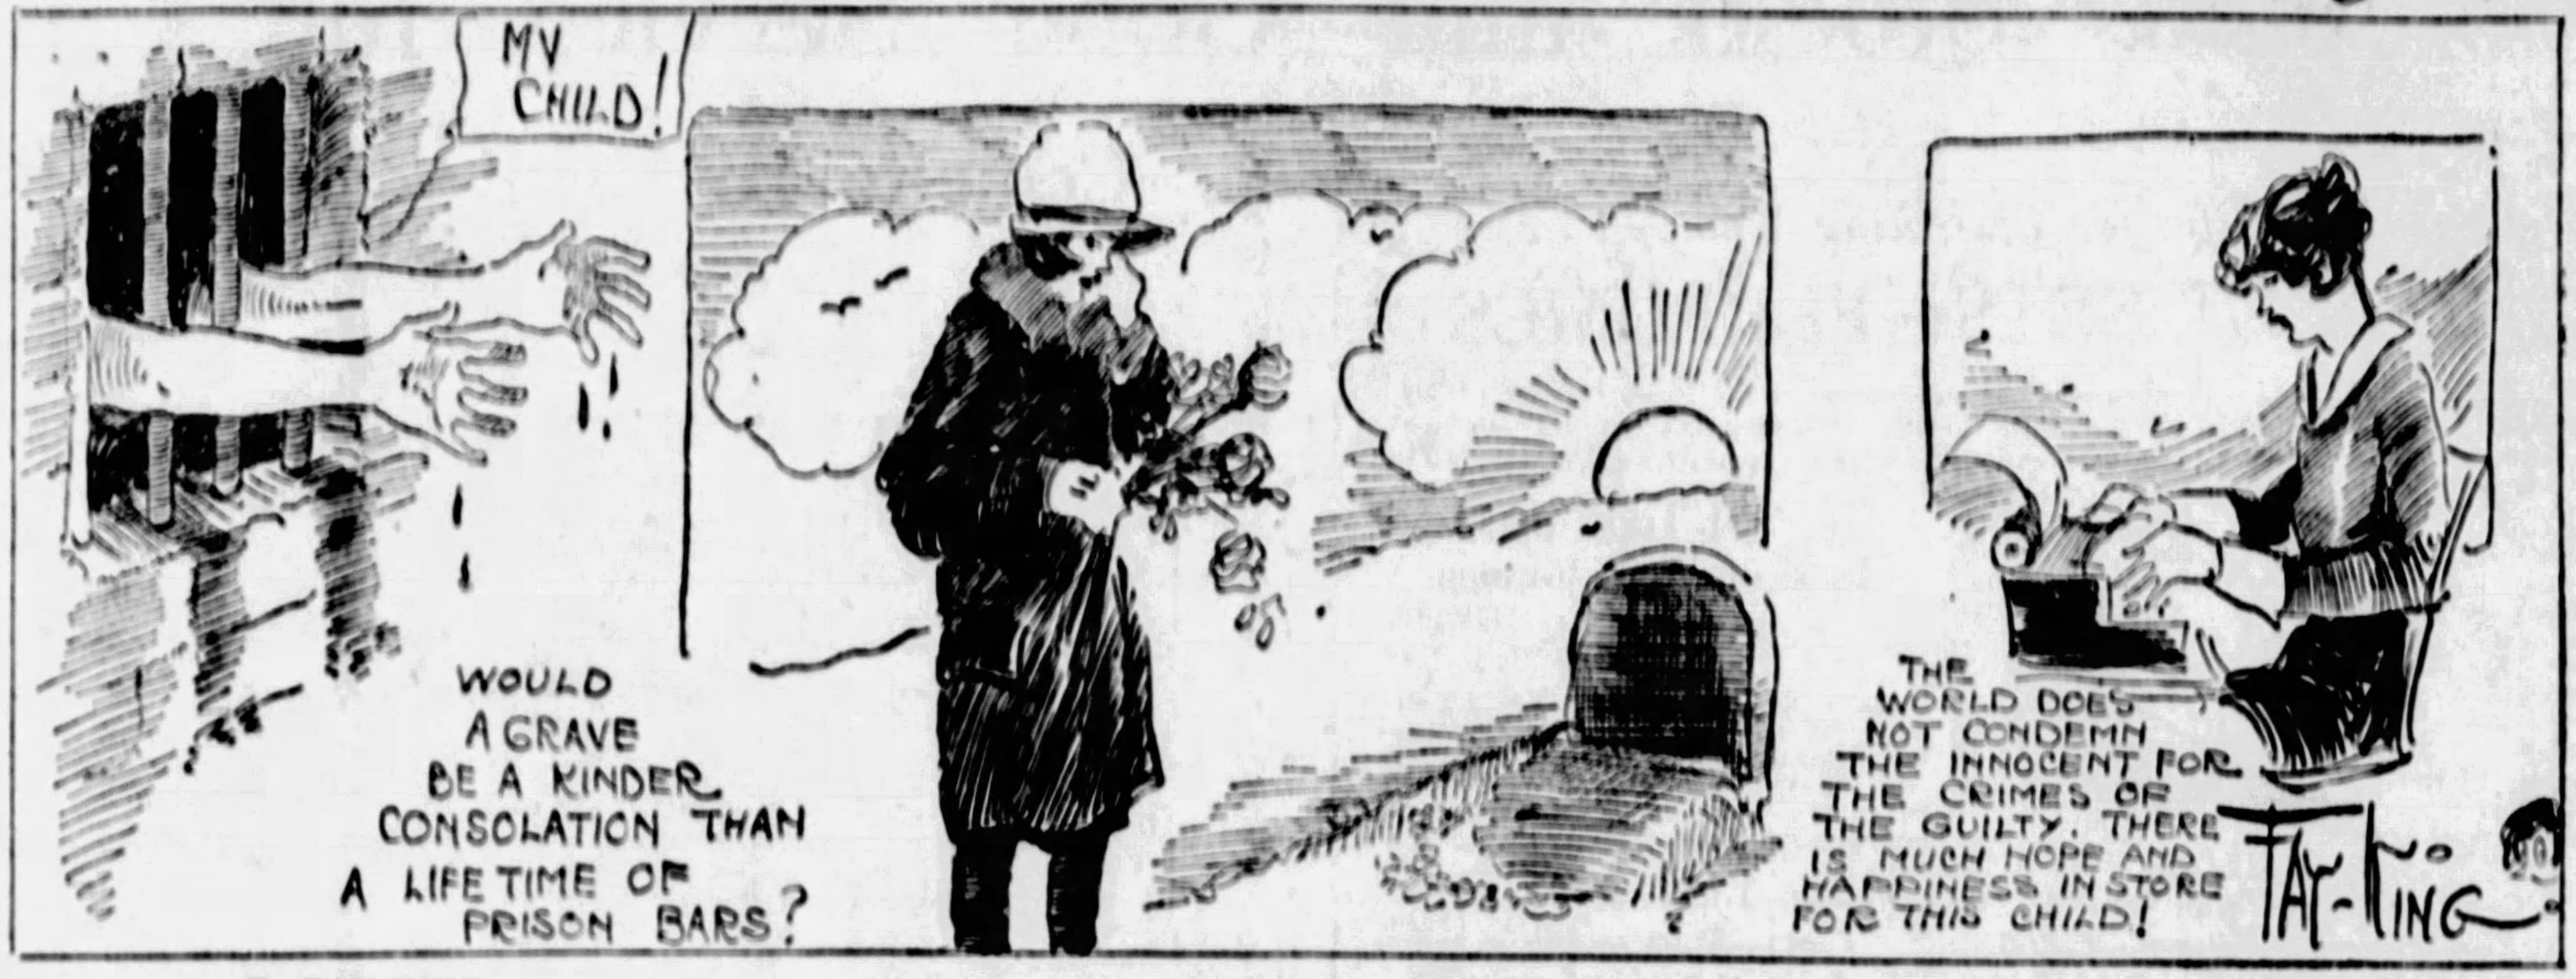
Good Mother Thinks First of Child's Welfare—Fay King



MY CHILD!
WOULD A GRAVE BE A KINDER CONSOLATION THAN A LIFE TIME OF PRISON BARS?
THE WORLD DOES NOT CONDEMN THE INNOCENT FOR THE CRIMES OF THE GUILTY. THERE IS MUCH HOPE AND HAPPINESS IN STORE FOR THIS CHILD!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

"WHAT will become of my child?" cries Ruth Snyder from the death house at Sing Sing.

Too bad she did not think of this at the proper time!

A good mother thinks first of the welfare of her child! There is no sacrifice too great, no suffering too acute to bear for the good of her child.

Only the other day a grandmother cooking a frugal meal for her grandchildren in a humble home leaped to her death from a window when her dress caught afire to save their lives. What more might their own mother have done?

Would Ruth Snyder prefer death if she thought it would mean a greater security for her child's future?

Ruth Snyder did not think of her own child, nor of the innocent child of Gray when she goaded him on to commit with her one of the most atrocious crimes on record.

No matter how it turns out for Ruth Snyder, the world will never condemn the innocent for the crimes of the guilty. Her child will grow to womanhood.

Time will ease the heartache.

Some good man will fall in love with her some day. His love will be so true and fine that he will love her all the more for the shadows she has innocently passed through.

But one can't help wondering if that child's future might not be more secure if there was no link with prison bars? No chance that just when her own little family was growing up, her mother might be freed and return to renew the blight?

Right Diet Helpful in Avoiding Cancer.

SIR ARBUTHNOT LANE has written a book. There is nothing new about this. For a generation he has been writing for doctors. But now he has added much to the cause of public health education by writing a book for laymen.

DR. COPELAND

Sir Arbuthnot is struggling to make Englishmen eat correctly. What does he say on the subject? "When will the public realize the immense importance of the part which wrong kinds of food play in the production of disease and the right kind of food in the preservation from illness?

That is a pertinent question. Upon its answer depends the future of the race.

This writer is a distinguished surgeon. For years he has studied and dealt with the digestive organs. Naturally he has come in contact with many cases of cancer. Whatever Dr. Lane might say about this dread disease would attract wide attention.

In this new book is a statement everybody should read and ponder. It is this:

"Very many years ago I demonstrated unmistakably that cancer never affects a healthy organ." So important does Sir Arbuthnot regard this conclusion that these words are printed in italics.

Then he goes on: "In order that cancer shall develop it is absolutely essential to produce a diseased tissue or organ in the first instance in which alone the cancer germ can grow. This immunity of a healthy organ from the risk of cancer has been generally accepted all over the world."

Here is what we must do to avoid cancer, according to Dr. Lane:

"The public must realize that cancer can only be avoided by following the right diet and habits, since by their means alone can the tissues and organs of the body be kept in a condition of perfect health, impregnable against their invasion by the deadly germ of cancer."

To bolster his position the author quotes as follows from one whom he refers to as the "greatest living authority" in this branch of research:

"For myself, I work on more and more amazed, day by day, by the extraordinary effects of faulty food on the animal organism. I begin to think that faulty nutrition is the bedrock cause of the vast majority of tissue ailments."

There can be no doubt that a building left without painting and repairs will soon fall into decay. The roof will leak and the rains will find their way into the interior of the structure. Rotting and destruction follow.

Without the proper foods, which are at the same time the building and repair material, the body must suffer. The way is prepared for the germs of cancer, as well as for other agents of destruction.

It is the duty of every individual to learn how to eat.

FOR THE LOVELORN

K. M. F.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a constant reader of your Lovelorn and enjoy it very much so I am asking you for advice. I've been married for three years and my husband doesn't give up dancing, so I started to go myself six months ago and he's been worse than ever. He tells me the more I go the worse he'll be, but he won't give it up. I tried everything to make him stay home but it's in vain. Please advise me what to do. Shall I stay home and give up dancing, too, or shall I go? We have a baby boy 20 months old. I thought probably he'd quit when the baby came but instead he took girls home from dances and came home at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. So please advise me, Miss Gale, what to do.

K. M. F.

Why don't you go with him to these dances? If you shared his fun instead of trying to scold him into giving it up, you might get along better. Try it, anyway.

Wondering

Dear Miss Gale:

I am wondering if you could advise me what to do! I am a young bride and am not out of my 'teens. My husband is older than I. He goes out at night and leaves me to sit at home alone. When I ask him to take me along he says "Go yourself." I know he loves me dearly. I also love him in the same way. But that isn't it. I want to know what I can do to make him stay at home with me or take me once in a while. What is best to do? Wishing you all the luck in the world.

WONDERING.

Appeal to his sense of fairness, my dear. Tell him you cannot very well go out by yourself, and that you want some good times, too.

But 10 Days Left to Aid Toy Mission

Only two weeks till Christmas, means only 10 days more for the activities of the Toy Mission in receiving gifts of toys, books and dolls for poor children in the city.

More than 20,000 children are to be looked after by the Mission and the distribution will be made December 24. In order that appropriate selections be made and the packages be prepared in time for Santa Claus delivery, it is pointed out by the management of the Toy Mission that donations should be placed in the hands of the various receiving agencies at the earliest possible moment. The Sun-Telegraph Auxiliary wants all gifts in hand before December 22.

Scores of volunteer workers enlisted by the Mission are now engaged in putting up packages, dressing dolls, mending toys and handling the immense amount of clerical work in connection with the distribution. Every girl 11 years of age and under reported to the Mission receives a doll and to meet this demand has been a task for church organizations, women's clubs and fraternal societies as well as individuals who have offered their services to Mrs. John E. Potter, who superintends the doll distribution.

Large quantities of new toys have been purchased with funds furnished by friends of the Mission and The Sun-Tele auxiliary who have made gifts of cash. Checks may be sent to the Mission or The Sun-Tele.

Packages may be given to street car conductors between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. and after 7 p. m., when they will be accepted for the Mission. Conductors cannot handle packages during rush hours and are not permitted to accept packages that would constitute an accident hazard to passengers. Gifts may be sent to any of The Sun-Tele agencies listed below.

BROTHERS ON FIGHT CARD

TWO brothers will appear on the boxing card at McKeesport Thursday night. Dick Gibbons of McKeesport will meet Ray Fay of Charleroi in the 10-round main bout, and his brother, Ed, will make his professional debut against Ray Braun of Lawrenceville in one of the six-round preliminaries. Dick is 19 and Ed 21. Both are heavyweights.

SHOTS and PASSES

COLLEGIATE basketball in in this section has taken a heavy toll from the ranks of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, virtually all clubs giving up dependable performers entering higher schools of learning.

Very few universities and colleges in this vicinity permit members of their teams to participate in independent contests and as a result many managers are scouring the vicinity in an effort to sign players suitable for their quintets.

Duquesne University, University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology have refused their players permission to play with the independents, thus making it necessary for several established clubs to make replacements in their regular lineups.

THE Sumer Somermans were weakened considerably by the loss of Eddie Losman and Sammy Pratt, two boys who did much to place the club among the leaders in first-class ranks. Both boys are competing for a regular berth on the Duquesne University squad.

Vincent Burns, who held down the center position for the St. Catherine's quintet of Beechview, has turned in his uniform to don the colors of the Dukes. Burns played a fine game at the important pivot post before he was ordered to desert the team by Coach Chick Devies.

The Siano Club likewise is hit by the collegiate sport, Collodi being a candidate for the Duquesne varsity squad.

EGAN and Kaercher seem to have added considerable strength to the St. Catherine's team of the P. & O. League and it would not prove a surprise to see this club rise in the standing before many more games are played. Egan showed up exceptionally well in the few games he played despite the fact that he was just getting accustomed to St. Catherine's style of play. An excellent shot and a good floor man, Egan should prove a big star with the Beechview passers this winter.

GEORGE DELVICCHIO, star of the Siano Club, appears to be in for his best season in the popular winter indoor game. Delvicchio, while still a youngster, nevertheless is a veteran of basketball, having received the fine points of the game while a member of the J. J. Mieles, P. & O. League champions.

Delvicchio is a steadying influence in the Siano teamplay, and when he is missing from the lineup the team invariably falls down considerably.

This youngster stands an excellent chance of ranking with the best performers in the P. & O. League this winter.

CONRAD, former Carnegie Tech star, will be found in the lineup of the McKees Rocks Business men in the Allegheny County League this winter. Conrad was one of the main cogs in the Carnegie machine several years ago and should prove himself a tower of strength on the Rocks aggregation.

Ralph Heinauer, manager of the McKees Rocks five, is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to give the supporters of the team a contender for the championship.

SPORT COMMENT

center for Pitt were recalled to spectators at the stadium Saturday, when Johnson, who was playing center for the Old Timers, made the feature defensive play of the game.

When Welch started on his sweeping end runs, Marsh broke through the line, pursued and caught Gibby and brought him down with a shoulder tackle.

It not only required unusual speed to overtake Welch, but Gibby is a powerful boy and it took a lot of strength to bring him to ground.

Johnson was wont to make plays of that kind frequently in his heyday.

MENTION of Johnson brings to mind a discussion among eight Pitt men after the game, the subject being the greatest centers the Panthers ever had. The eight were former players or men who had been closely associated with Pitt teams.

Showing how rich Pitt has been in star centers, no fewer than four received votes as having been the best of the past. They were Bob Peck, Charley Bowser, Marsh Johnson and Herb Stein. The balloting ended in a tie between Peck and Bowser for first place.

It was agreed that Andy Cutler of this year's team deserved to be ranked as equal to the best in passing, though not as spectacular on the defensive as some of the others.

ANOTHER center of Pitt's football past who might be added to the list of greats is Jack Turner, who rose to the heights in 1907 by outplaying all opponents, notably Dunn of Penn State.

Dunn had been named by Walter Camp as all-America center in 1906, but Turner outplayed him to such an extent that Dunn retired before the end of the game. Beating the ends down the field under punts and tackling the catcher was a common feat on the part of Turner.

After the centers had been voted on the discussion shifted to Pitt's best fullbacks, with the verdict being a toss-up between Tex Richards and George McLaren, high praise being given to Andy Gustafson.

THREE-FOURTHS of a famous Pitt backfield were in the dressing room after the game, by the way. They were Tom Davies, Tom Holleran and Johnny Anderson. Holleran and Anderson played for the Old Timers, but Davies was merely a dressing room visitor after the game. The fourth member of that backfield, not present Saturday, was Tiny Hewitt.

Light-Heavy Bout Tonight

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—After the dullest week of the year, the metropolitan fight game will go to the other extreme during the six-day period that starts today. No less than three world's championships will be at stake in matches to be held this week, all of them at Madison Square Garden.

In addition, the Pioneer A. C. is featuring the touted Joe Sekyra of Indianapolis in a 10-round bout with sturdy George La Rocco on Tuesday night. All in all, it is the most important program that New Yorkers have been offered in many a month.

The world's light-heavyweight championship bout tonight between Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia and Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo will start the ball rolling. The bout is billed for 15 rounds.

At present both Loughran and Slattery are half owners of the bauble, each holding a leg on the trophy by virtue of romping off with their respective elimination bouts. Tom won the right to the left leg by soundly trouncing Bowid Michael McTigue, while Slattery grabbed hold of the other pedestal by eliminating Maxie Rosenbloom.

TOM IS FAVORITE

Loughran rules a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting, but these odds may be out of proportion.

On Friday night the Garden will present two championship matches of 15 rounds each on the same card. Ted Morgan, the junior lightweight champion, will defend his title against Joe Glick in one, and Newsboy Brown and Izzy Schwartz will fight it out for the flyweight title in the other.

marred by a bad accident. Secrist of Sunnyside broke his leg and Dunlevy won, 2 to 1. That Monongahela league is probably one of the best balanced in the district, very few big scores are chalked up.

The one-sided win of the Pittsburgh Rovers over the Central A. C. landed the District league pennant down in Lawrenceville for the year. Few will say the Rovers are not worthy of the honor. The Strip aggregation played wonderful soccer, but it was the aquisition of Trysull Evans at center forward that placed the Rovers in that race. Evans provided the punch needed after all the scientific stars had gotten in their work.

Just as expected Turtle Creek Thistles and the Swissvale club played a tight battle at the Valley grounds. The points were divided, proving the contention that the clubs are well balanced. Brown did the needful in the closing minutes of the game, beating Fowler all the way with a real shot from the penalty mark.

While the District league race has provided the fans with plenty of action during the past three months, it is the American League that is keeping soccer on the map locally, with nearly all of the cup tie games taking a flop. Three great games were staged in this loop and all were played to record crowds for the season.

Next week the schedule will consist of mostly cup ties, with the national amateur cup holding the limelight. Heidelberg will not be playing in defense of its crown, however, for the Balsarini aggregation has drawn a bye in this round. But some of the other sessions are going to be torrid with all of the leading clubs tied up in the race.

BASEBALL

into the Peacock Alley trade conversation, although the Pittsburgh bosses have intimated that Smith is not on the market.

Morrison made a costly mistake in leaving the club in the middle of the past race. John Dewey may windup in the minors; however, there is a chance that he will be used in a deal with another major league team.

Aldridge, for some reason, does not seem to be sitting any too secure with the Forbes Field family. Vic's plate may not be tossed out but it would not be a shocking surprise if the Hoosier were to be considered in a deal with some other National League team.

While Vic is a "Giant-Killer," he does not beat other clubs with the same frequency, so there is talk of changing his outside aerial. Should Firpo leave the club his speed and fast-ball would be missed when the Pirates clash with the Polo Grounders.

Yde's case is hard to figure. Emil has lots of natural ability, but so far he has not emerged from the "thrower" class. There are throwers and pitchers. The rising young Alexander of the Cardinals is a pitcher.

Before the day is over practically all of the National League magnates will have reached Peacock Alley, and it won't be hard for any of them to find Little Donie, who while being a modest winner will keep his persons close enough to the foreground with the idea of talking shop.

The National League session, as usual, will be held in the Waldorf Hotel. The impending gathering will be the fifty-third for the tried and true organization.

The American League, following tradition, will convene at the Belmont. Then on Thursday the two big circuits will carry their joys and sorrows to the Roosevelt Hotel, where the white-haired Judge of the big stick and funny hat will handle the after year we have a close battle, and just lose out. I was hoping this would be our year, but it wasn't to be. We had our occasional off-season and it just happened that all of our leading opponents were at their best when we were at our worst."

DURING Steffen's talk and the talks of others, it was intimated that Tech men have their own ideas about two of the touchdowns scored by Pitt against the Tartans in the latter's spirited "comeback" following the Wash-Jeff defeat.

Steffen's comment on the Pitt game was merely:

"We won't talk about the Pitt game, but now that the season is over, and Pitt's record is considered, we don't look so bad in comparison."

Tech was the first team to score on Pitt and the only team aside from Nebraska to tally against the Panthers.

It will be remembered that Pitt had a close call on two of its touchdowns, each of which was just made on the final down, and that at the time there was a mild protest that the ball actually was not over the goal line in the melee of players.

Steffen in his talk revealed the fact that the fumble which paved the way for Pitt's scoring early in the game developed from a surprise play which had been practiced with a view to catching Pitt napping. Instead it went awry and surprised Tech.

"WE DO not want to take any glory away from Pitt," Steffen said, emphatically. "We have learned to appreciate our own success and to be satisfied with it. And we are not looking for any so-called 'moral' victories. We are fed up on them. We are a big team out fighting to win. Moral victories are a thing of the past with us. We want to meet our opponents on even terms—AND COME OFF WITH THE BIG END OF THE SCORE. For that's all that counts in the end, anyway. The figures tell the story of the winner and loser."

Steffen paid a tribute to Ira Rodgers' West Virginia University eleven, which had a disastrous season. "Its record does not begin to tell the real strength of the team," Steffen said. "I was greatly surprised by its power the day we played against it. It was a really good team, but something went wrong somewhere, and its record suffered in consequence."

COMMENTING on the new two-team idea which is to be tried out in the Western Conference next season, Steffen said these institutions have more players than they need and easily can follow such a plan. However, many other squads barely have enough good players to make up a reserve corps for the first team.

"In modern football it is quite the thing to have players engage in only part of each half and give them plenty of rest between periods," Steffen said. "Under the systems in vogue at Illinois and Notre Dame, for instance, the players who start generally are relieved early in the second quarter and go to the clubhouse, where they are sponged down and given a long rest before they return at the start of the second half, and their relief players get similar treatment when they are relieved, so that it is not an uncommon thing for the stars to relax for 45 minutes while their subs, also strong players, are in the game. Our problem at Tech generally is that the starting players have to hang on throughout the game—and that's playing football."

STEFFEN cited a case in point during Tech's game with Detroit at Forbes Field which closed the home season this year.

"With Cowan and Moorhead and others hurt, I was looking up and down the bench wondering what players I might send into the game without materially weakening the lineup," he said, "when Coach Waddell greeted me with an amused smile and asked:

" 'What are you looking for? You won't find it.'

"Next year, though, with this season's fine freshman team coming up, I hope things will be different," Steffen added. "We should have enough material for two good, strong teams and shouldn't be so hard pressed for reserves."

second him and predicts Jack will turn in a decisive victory. Carney has been supervising Zivic's training for the last few weeks and he says Jack again is the hustling bearcat who scored so many triumps in the Motor Square ring in the good old days.

Zivic is matched for a 10-round bout with Tommy (Kid) Herman at Philadelphia next Monday night and is to meet Ace Hudkins at Detroit, January 6. His brother, Peter, who is a good card in the latter city, returns there next Monday night for a match with Davy Abad.

Young Rudy of Charleroi and Teddy Welch of McKeesport, two lightweights, who toss a lot of gloves at each other, meet again in the semi-final tonight. U. S. Carpentier of New Kensington and Johnny Michaels of Jamestown, N. Y., box the six-round second bout and Johnny Vivio of Bloomfield and Jimmy Belmont of Braddock meet in the opener over the same route at 8:30.

MANY BOUTS TONIGHT

Danny Cooney of Trenton, N. J., and Dorey Shimer of Williamsport, lightweights, box the 10-round main bout of a show in Capitol Hall, Johnstown, tonight. Linn Jordan, Negro middleweight of Johnstown, and Young Joe Grimm of Chicago are paired for the semi-final, Sammy Trott of Monessen and Adolph Rodgers, Cuban, for the second bout, and Joe Archer of Beaverdale and Bruno Sallo of Donora for the opening bout.

Other bouts listed about the country for tonight include the light-heavyweight championship mill of 15 rounds between Tommy Loughran and Jimmy Slattery in Madison Square Garden, New York, with Clyde Hull of Texas and Farmer Joe Cooper meeting in the semi-final; Lew Tendler vs. Hilario Martinez, Philadelphia; Al Mello vs. Jock Malone, Boston; Eddie Shea vs. Babe Ruth, Chicago, and an inter-city show between Pittsburgh and Buffalo amateurs at Buffalo.

Young Griffo, the former featherweight star, was buried with honors yesterday in New York. The body was encased in a silver casket furnished by Tex Rickard. Four former champions, Jim Jeffries, Jim Corbett, Benny Leonard and Jack McAuliffe, acted as pallbearers, and Gene Tunney sent a wreath of flowers.

Hans Breitenstraeter, former German heavyweight champion, was knocked out in the fifth round by Frang Diener in Berlin last night.

Young Terry McGovern of Chambersville will box Bobby Grafton of Camp Meade in the semi-final to the Willie Ptomey-Frankie Theodore main bout at Cumberland tonight.

Carl Rodato of Braddock, George Posey of Homestead and John McTiernan of Swissvale have been selected to represent Pittsburgh in the inter-city amateur boxing show in Madison Square Garden, New York, against New York, New Haven and Philadelphia boxers Wednesday night. Bob Moody of Tarentum and R. J. Sheridan will represent this city in the amateur heavyweight show in Cleveland Friday night.

turned the complexion of things when he missed a play at second base which allowed the Pirates to stage a series-winning rally. Curiously, too, just before giving this poor exhibition, he had been voted the most valuable man in the American League. His name will always be linked with failure in Pittsburgh memory, but that this is not a fair estimate of the man is realized when his long usefulness to the American League is remembered. He failed in 1925 because he was up against a type of baseball speed he never had faced before. In that 1925 Pirate lineup there was an abundance of dangerous speed which made imperative (especially on the part of the shortstop) the handling of all chances cleanly. With such speedsters as Moore, Cuyler, Carey, Traynor (and for a time) Grantham, ready, with a Bigbee in reserve, Peckinpaugh discovered to his horror that any slips were likely to prove disastrous. Even such an experienced veteran became a little unnerved over this circumstance, and with this shaky feeling came a series of costly mishaps which ruined the Senators' chances.

WHAT he accomplishes in the managerial role, owing to his unique, if brief historical connection in Pittsburgh, will be watched with interest. He is a dark-complected, sad-eyed man, whose long face adds to a lugubrious outline of countenance. In his league he was known as one of the best liked athletes of his playing days.

HE takes his new position under happy auspices. He will serve directly under Billy Evans, former umpire, now general manager of the Cleveland club, whose long experience in watching the managerial parade, will prompt him to be tolerant towards a new man in a difficult role. He serves more remotely the new ownership in Cleveland, the Bradleys, who are the Croesus of Cleveland, since Rockefeller moved away. He will be armed with a large money bag to reconstruct the club which dissolved under the waning leadership of Speaker, and under the impotent McCallister, who lasted but a jiffy, relatively.

THERE can be no doubt that Peckinpaugh knows all there is to know about the strategy of the game. Only the dullest dolt would miss the fine hairs of strategy after such a long period of minute observation experienced by Peckinpaugh. But managerial acumen is about one-fourth strategy and three-fourths knowledge of human nature. The woods are filled with men who know what to do in every conceivable baseball situation, armed with plenty of authoritative precedent, but the woods are barren of men who know how to handle baseball players.

THAT the last three decades have produced but one John McGraw who knows the baseball flesh, how to lash it into winning fury and how to heal wounds diplomatically, is certain proof that few there are who are masters at handling the curious temperament of the ball player.

With a capacity for recruiting good forces, with ability to direct mechanically these forces, Peckinpaugh has not even half the battle won. Upon how he handles the men will rest his success or failure. That is the test of a good manager. Peck will do well to study up on his McGraw.

league encounter by a single point and indications are that a capacity crown will be out at Columbus Temple tonight to see the return battle.

Considerable prestige was added to the Braddock American Legion team by the manner in which it performed against the McKeesport Cyclers Saturday night. Strengthened by the addition of Roy O'Donovan and Sticks Monohan, former Duquesne University stars, the Braddock passers gave an excellent account of themselves against their more heralded opponents, leading throughout the battle, only to lose out in the dying moments of the game. This team is going to bear watching in the Allegheny County League race.

OHIO STATE STUDENTS CHARGED WITH SCALPING

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Five men students at Ohio State University face charges of "scalping" tickets on the Ohio-Michigan football game and will be given a hearing before the student court next Saturday, it was learned today. Those accused are John N. Neilly, Martins Ferry; Maurice H. Smuckler and Edward R. Beallo of Cleveland, Kenneth Wasserman of Columbus and Ben Bell of Bellevue. The charges were brought by Henry Taylor, ticket manager at the university. Bell bought student tickets from the others, paying $51 for the four, and was caught as he was disposing of them at "scalpers' prices" at Ann Arbor, according to Taylor.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Resignation of George W. Hauser as head coach of Colgate University football was accepted at a special meeting of the athletic council, according to announcement made yesterday afternoon. At the same time Hauser was appointed assistant football coach.

Panthers Speed Up Drill

WISHING to take full advantage of the exceptionally mild weather, Coach Jock Sutherland ordered full speed ahead as the Panthers went through their paces today in preparation for their Tournament of Roses game with the Cardinals of Stanford. Dissatisfaction over the showing of the Varsity on Saturday, when it won over the Old Grads by the slim margin of 2-0, also figured in Jock's command.

Indications are that the Pitt Special, leaving here on the evening of December 26, will be made up of three Pullmans. Requests for reservations from alumni have become so heavy that a special car for the old grads probably will be chartered. Graduate Manager K. E. Davis is taking care of reservations for those not officially connected with the party.

This week will see another Pitt varsity team getting started. The basketballers are to swing into action in the Middle West Thursday night, playing Michigan at Ann Arbor, moving from there to Chicago for a game with the Maroons and then meeting Northwestern at Evanston on Saturday. Monday they'll close the Western trip with a game at Iowa City with Iowa. Four Big Ten games in five days—that is a tough assignment.

The other two local schools, Tech and the Dukes, will confine their efforts for the week to practice. The Dukes do not open the season until December 22, playing Ohio Wesleyan here on that date, while Tech will not get started until after the first of the year, playing West Virginia at Morgantown, January 7.

GRIDDER, HURT, DIES

AKRON, O., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Joseph Schoch, 22, Akron College and semi-professional football star, died today from a brain abscess, the result of a gridiron injury. The abscess came from a broken nose, doctors believe. Schoch was captain of Akron University eleven in 1925. This fall he starred for South Akron team until injured.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

HAS the management of the Pittsburgh baseball club been planning to swing a deal, or at least to lay the foundation for one, even before the beginning of the major league annual confabs in New York this week?

Perhaps not, but to most fans the action of the Pirate officials—President Dreyfuss, Manager Bush and Secretary Watters—in leaving for the East yesterday morning instead of last night appears significant.

Baseball men do so much railroad traveling during the year that trainriding becomes a monotony, so it is hardly likely that the Pittsburgh club officials would have chosen to "undergo" the long daylight trip, instead of "sleeping it through" at night, as is their custom, unless they had a special purpose in doing so.

FURTHERMORE there was considerable mystery and unusual delay in the fixing of the starting hour, and it was not until Manager Bush arrived here Saturday that a decision was reached on the time of departure.

Whether the Pirate party arranged to stop at some point en route to New York for a meeting by appointment with the officials of some other club, or planned a side trip out of New York last night for such a conference, can only be surmised, but it appears strongly probable that there was "something on" when they braved the daylight ride, and that "something" could hardly have been other than an attempt to make a trade in advance of the league sessions.

THE Pitt Old Timers didn't fare poorly in holding the Panther 1927 varsity to a 2-to-0 score. In doing so, they not only performed with credit to themselves, but they did a good job toward improving the condition of the varsity team for the clash with Stanford in Pasadena three weeks from today.

The latter was the main object of the Pitt athletic chiefs in arranging Saturday's game.

In his hard task of keeping his men on edge from Thanksgiving Day until January 2, Coach Sutherland found that he would have to devote his efforts to the mental side rather than the physical. The players were becoming listless and mechanical in merely running through signal drills every other night, and naturally there was a loss of playing form as well as a loss of pep. Jock saw that something was needed to "wake them up," and that's why the tilt with the vets was arranged.

IT HAD the desired effect, too, for it gave the players of 1927 a new interest in their work, showed them how badly they were falling off in their play—a fact which Capt. Welch and the rest admitted after the game by calling attention to their own defects—and made them realize that they must buckle down to business anew and improve themselves if they are to escape certain defeat in the Tournament of Roses game.

For that reason, even for no other, the game was a success. It provided a welcome interruption to the long period of signal drilling, aroused the varsity players and in a sense served to shorten the time during which Coach Sutherland must keep the team in something like playing form.

THE days a few years back during which Marsh Johnson starred at

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

COUNCILMAN JOHN S. HERRON got off a good wise crack at the expense of a member of Carnegie Tech's Varsity Clan at that organization's annual banquet to the Carnegie Tech football team in the William Penn Hotel Saturday afternoon. He was lauding Tech as an educational institution and pointed out this individual as a "horrible example" of the advantages of the school.

"Why, I knew him when he didn't know the length of a short circuit—and look at him now!" the councilman said, and drew a big laugh.

JUDGE WALLY STEFFEN, Tech's advisory coach, always is interesting, and he didn't fail to come up to expectations in his talk at the football festive board.

He contrasted last year's team, which handed Notre Dame a real walloping, with that of this season, which suffered four defeats, all traceable, as Steffen facetiously and charitably remarked, to the efforts of Head Coach Bob Waddell in his absence, and said that he was filled with admiration for the fighting qualities of the eleven that battled on so gamely in the face of discouraging odds.

"After that victory over Notre Dame we were a marked team during the past season. All of our opponents pointed for us. All wanted to beat the team that had beaten Notre Dame," Steffen said, "and they found us wrecked by the loss of many stars whose real worth we didn't appreciate until they were gone. We were beaten four times, yet I never was unhappy, although I was disappointed. I could not be unhappy with the boys giving their all."

STEFFEN several times in his talk dwelt on the team's defeat by Wash-Jeff and expressed his appreciation of the great fight his charges put up that day. "I asked them to win for me," he said, "and I'll never again ask a team to do that. It was unfair to the team. They knew how badly I wanted to beat W. & J., and make a great try, but it just wasn't in the cards for us to win."

One gained from Steffen's constant reference to the W. & J. contest the notion that he considered this the game of games on the Tech schedule and the one which he was most anxious to win, year in and year out, even more so than the battle with Pitt for the local championship.

I asked Wally about this later, and he hastened to clear away this impression.

"No, the Pitt game is the most important," he said. "But this year I wanted to beat W. & J., because W. & J. has been our jinx. Year

SIX CLUBS SET FOR FIRST GAMES

By JULIUS LEVIN.

THE long-awaited opening of the Allegheny County League, last year the best professional loop operating hereabouts, is scheduled tonight, when all six teams swing into action.

The Duquesne Lafayettes, winners of the championship last season, invade Braddock to meet the American Legion team, which held the crack McKeesport Cyclers to a 30-29 score Saturday night; Broadway Club meets the McKees Rocks Business Men at McKees Rocks, and the Enoch Rauhs clash with the Goose Goslins at the South Side Market House in the opening contests.

Besides the three County League attractions, the Miele-Siano battle, a natural grudge fight, will draw the attention of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League followers. The Mieles defeated the Sianos in their first

He was a valuable shortstop with the Yankees and latterly with the Senators, although Pittsburgh fans got a false impression of his worth during the world series of 1925 between the Pirates and the Senators. In that series it was Peckinpaugh's ill-fortune to make his errors at the most inopportune times. It seemed that every faux pas that Peckinpaugh made resulted in some major disaster to his team. In the final game when he apparently had redeemed himself for all transgression by hitting a home run which put his team out in front in the closing stages of the game, he again

HARMON, ZIVIC IN THIRD CLASH

JACK ZIVIC vs. Willie Harmon. Time was that was a main bout and a big one in New York, where the pair met over the 12-round route year before last and for 10 rounds last year. Tonight they get together again in the 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden and promise to draw a crowd of respectable proportions after a series of unprofitable gatherings this season in the East End arena.

Harmon will be after his first win in the series with Zivic, who got the decision in their first meeting and a draw in the second. Willie claims Jack really didn't have any the better of these two clashes and that he will demonstrate to the satisfaction of everybody that he is Jack's master in their bout tonight.

HARMON WORKS OUT

Harmon worked out lightly in the Motor Square gym yesterday before a crowd of fans and impressed them with his condition. Zivic did not arrive in the city until 9 o'clock this morning. He was accompanied by his buddy, Luke Carney, who will

MAY CLOSE DEALS AT LEAGUE MEET

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Subscribers to the early bird theory, officials of the Pittsburgh club were among the first to reach New York for the annual meeting of the National League, which does not commence officially until tomorrow. Messrs. B. Dreyfuss, Bush and Watters were on the job bright and early this morning in the interest of the championship team.

The Pirate directors, realizing the thrill that comes from artistic and financial successes, desire to keep the club in the flag fight for many years to come. Goodness knows, it was hard for the Pirates to get "up there," but some times it is harder to stay on the peak than to reach that exclusive and productive zone.

In all events, Dreyfuss and Bush are ready and willing to mix with any potential David Harum's who might have swapping desires. Donie the pilot, as well as his superior officer, knows that the Pirates, as champions, are not all that is to be desired as a championship array. Indeed, the Buccos of 1928 will have many glaring defects unless a deal or two is engineered.

Bush and his boss had nothing definite to offer this morning in the way of news. The owner of the team will be kept quite busy with rather important league business, Bush being free to talk turkey to anybody who likes this kind of lingo.

Donie makes no secret of the fact that he would like to grab a dependable player or two, and the way the roads are now, he will have to part with stars of value to get what he wishes, as every manager is looking for playing strength.

PERSONAL FOUL RULE UPHELD

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The five personal foul rule, under fire since its institution in professional basketball last spring, became a permanent regulation Saturday when magnates of the American League upheld the rule by a five to two vote.

A concession was granted those who oppose it by providing that all clubs should have not less than seven men in uniform at every game, and that in case three men were eliminated by the five personal foul rule, the one first ejected could re-enter the game.

Detroit announced the purchase of Richard "Soup" Campbell from Philadelphia and Ted Feldt of Fort Wayne.

CITY AWARDED SKATING MEET

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12.—The 1928 indoor skating championships of the International Skating Union were awarded to Pittsburgh at a meeting of the body held here yesterday. The international classic went to the Great Lakes Association and will be held in Detroit.

SPRINGDALE AMICUS BEATS RYANS, 9-0

The Ryans of Hazelwood, who have been among the leading contenders for the district independent football honors, awoke this morning to find themselves out of the race, as the result of a 9-0 lacing handed them yesterday by the Springdale Amicus at Springdale.

A safety in the first period and a touchdown in the second proved to be the victory points for Springdale. The Ryans carried the ball down the field shortly after the start of the game to the very goal line, only to be held for downs. Springdale took the ball and tried to punt out of danger, but the pass from center was bad and a safety resulted.

In the second period, with Flenniken carrying the ball most of the time, the Springdale eleven started a drive in midfield that ended when Flenniken went crashing over the goal line for a touchdown. A Ryan player was offside on the try for extra point and the point awarded to Springdale. The lineup:

INTERNATIONALS LOSE TO HEIDELBERG, 2-1

By TOM BIRKS.

DESPITE the fact that Sunday was the worst day since the inception of the season, practically all of the scheduled games got under way, only one, the Mustard Hollow-Harmarville game, being called with the field under water. The much-touted session at Curry, where the Internationals hooked up with the amateur champions from Heidelberg, was a thriller, Heidelberg winning by a 2 goals to 1 score. Pittsburgh had little trouble defeating McKees Rocks 2 to 0. The West Penn cup game must have a hoodoo, for again it was unfinished, the crossbar breaking with 20 minutes to go and Braddock leading Westinghouse by 2 to 1.

However, scientific football was out of the question for most of the grounds were ankle deep in mud and rushing methods took the place of the passing game. Chappel, as usual, kicked in with his goal, after Donnelli had found the net and Kisshmann had scored for the Internationals.

Kane is getting plenty of goals these days for the Tubers. Sunday found him flashing the ball into the net twice with Mike Karkalla well beaten on both occasions. Going back up the river plenty of exciting soccer was played, with the real battle being staged, as usual, at Gallatin, with Donora on the short end of a 3 to 1 score. Bagnas was in fine form, the Gallatin boys getting two goals while brother Jimmie kicked in with one.

The Sunnyside-Dunlevy game was

Murchison, Star Runner, Shows Improvement

DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Loren Murchison, sprint flash of two Olympic games who has been near death in a Decatur hospital since Wednesday suffering from cerebro-spinal meningitis, was "holding his own, with slight improvement," the latest bulletin on his condition said.

The report, contradicting those which had come from the sick room Sunday, was given out after physicians had completed laboratory tests of spinal fluid. The tests, they said, while not auguring recovery, indicated some improvement.

Another 48 hours, the doctors believe, should tell whether Murchison will recover.

Stock Battle is Two-Sided; Trade Mixed; Hopes High.

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The Federal Court's decision against the St. Louis and O'Fallon Railroad and upholding the Interstate Commerce Commission's valuation and its demand for the recapture of excess earnings is disconcerting. It will, of course, be appealed to the United States Supreme Court. That final authority applies "the rule to reason" and it may well be that its decision will be distinctly more favorable to the millions who own our railroads.

Meanwhile, however, the latest development in this closely-watched case cannot fail to have an effect upon sentiment. Just how far disappointment will be reflected this week in the market for railway securities remains to be seen. It promptly stopped the rise that was under way on Saturday when the news came.

WALL STREET again spent the week backing and filling, with the net result a modest loss in average quotations. President Coolidge's unsensational message did not cause any spurt. Indeed, the drift was downwards until Friday, when there was a sudden recovery of two points. Saturday's market first was strong then weak.

Average quotations are now fully five points below the year's peak, reached on October 4. But they are still nearly forty points above the January low level.

Bonds meanwhile are very close to their highest figure of the year.

STOCK market opinions are becoming more pronounced. Perhaps it would be better to say that bearish utterances are more numerous and more emphatic. The prevailing disposition still is, however, to enlarge upon favorable developments and to minimize unfavorable developments. Last week brought both.

A CAUTIONARY utterance by Charles E. Mitchell, president of America's largest financial bank, regarding expansion in brokers' loans could not be ignored notwithstanding that he declared that even heavy gold exports need cause no uneasiness. The fact is that the leading banks could change the whole complexion of the call money market—and, consequently, of the speculative market—at any time by shutting down on the very free borrowing which had been indulged in without hinderance. The Federal reserve system's ratio of reserve is below a year ago and at several of the banks the decrease has been rather drastic.

While nothing has occurred so far to point to any raising of rediscount rates, one does hear rumors that such action is a possibility of the not distant future.

Such a step would greatly strengthen the bears and weaken the confidence of even the most powerful bulls. And as the stock market has been and still is swayed from day to day by the tactics of the professional speculators, the outcome might be fairly drastic.

LITTLE or no encouragement came from the week's fluctuations in grain prices or from the movements in cotton following the government's final crop estimate of 12,789,000 bales notwithstanding that this figure is well under any crop since 1922.

Industrial news was mixed rather one-sided. Bradstreet's week-end statement that "industry is at a low ebb and reports of increased unemployment come from many centers," was not interpreted altogether pessimistically, since the closing weeks of the year often bring a let-up in factory operations.

The latest returns show railway traffic is fully 10 per cent below a year ago and two years ago. On the other hand, bank clearings show a gain even after allowing for the expansion in New York caused by stock speculation.

MY own talks with men in different lines of business elicited statements that things have improved appreciably in the last week or two. November retail trade proved more satisfactory than October's and Christmas buying is described as heavy. At certain points building has revived—somewhat unexpectedly.

As for forecasts of what lies ahead, almost all are either moderately or extremely optimistic. Secretary Mellon represents the government; Mr. Mitchell, represents the bankers; and a whole host of representatives of industry have been voicing very cheerful predictions. Recent political events are lightly touched upon in statements for publication. It would be short-sighted to gloss over the fact, however, that they are not altogether lightly regarded in responsible circles.

THE writer still sees nothing to prevent reasonably good business, but he cannot become exuberant over the hectic conditions in the stock market.

MARKET LEANS IN BULLISH DIRECTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Speculative sentiment was distinctly bullish in today's stock market. Week-end consideration of the St. Louis Federal Court decision in the celebrated St. Louis & O'Fallon case allayed some of the fears aroused by the initial reports and revived hopes that more favorable consideration to the railroad's arguments would be given by the United States Supreme Court, to which the case will be taken. The unexpectedly large increase in the November unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, which were made public at the close of the market on Saturday, and Secretary Hoover's optimistic view that a solution may be found for the overproduction problem in the oil industry also helped to create a more favorable sentiment.

Revival of excited speculation in the airplane shares was based on the interest shown in the proposed Lindbergh flight to Mexico, and expectations of a substantial growth in commercial air route development next year. Wright Aeronautical, manufacturer of the famous "whirlwind motor," soared more than 10 points to a new high record at 87, as against a low of 24½ earlier this year.

U. S. Steel common up 3 points to 144¾, after having sold at 138 last week; Abraham & Straus ran up more than six points, and a number of others including Houston, Atlantic Refining, American Steel Foundaries, International Telephone and Greene Cananea Copper sold 3 to 5 points higher.

More than a score issues broke into new high ground, the list including Atchison preferred, Porto Rican Tobacco A and B, Gold Dust, Manhattan Shirt, Calumet & Arizona, Reid Ice Cream, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Nash Motors and Continental Can.

Rails, which were heavily sold on Saturday, showed splendid resistance to pressure today, and a few moved forward, but the gains were relatively small.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today, with no sales reported and Cuban quoted at 4 3/8c, duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened one point lower for December, under liquidation, but one point higher on later deliveries on covering and a little buying by houses with European connections. The steadiness was due to the favorable London market, but the demand was not aggressive, and when a few selling orders appeared prices reacted. At midday the market was net unchanged to one point. Business was only of small proportions, with the trade inclined to limit operations and await fresh developments. Private advices received here said that a Havana newspaper reported all efforts to induce President Machado to alter his decree of June 2, which fixed January 1 for the starting of the new crop, had failed, although no official announcement was received here either as to the date of start or to what the crop would be restricted to.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.80c to 5.90c for fine granulated.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Du Ponts in U. S. Rubber.

The financial district hears on what is regarded as reliable authority that approximately 300,000 shares of U. S. Rubber common are in the hands of the Du Pont interests who control General Motors Corporation and are heavily interested in U. S. Steel Corporation. The 300,000 shares represents not quite 40 per cent of the 810,000 common shares outstanding and, although the 651,190 shares of preferred also have voting power, the block of common owned by Du Ponts is considered to give them virtual working control. Those in possession of the facts do not expect Du Ponts will exercise their apparent control of the U. S. Rubber Company and attempt to take an active hand in the management at least for the time being. Representation on the directorate is not now being sought, but in the near future a Du Pont representative will likely join the rubber board. It is believed the new factors in U. S. Rubber will pursue a policy similar to that followed in the early years after their acquisition of a big stock interest in General Motors. They were content to permit W. C. Durant to continue in rather complete control it is recalled. They did, however, maintain close association with Durant and offered helpful suggestions from time to time.

Sales of General Motors cars to overseas dealers in the first nine months exceeded the full total of any preceding year. The aggregate of 141,231 cars and trucks for the first nine months compared with 118,791 in all of 1926 and 86,196 in the first nine months in 1926.

Hoover Optimistic on Oil.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover today predicted concrete results as the outcome of the conference of the oil industry, the American Bar Association and the government, with respect to formulation of a legislative program for conservation of American oil resources. The secretary said the matter of federal control is still a very doubtful question, but he thought some workable solution to oil problems concerned would grow out of the conference.

Anaconda-Greene Cananea.

The street hears that recent buying of Greene Cananea has been for the account of financial interests associated with Anaconda Copper. These people are reported to have accumulated more than 200,000 shares of Greene Cananea, which has 500,000 shares outstanding. Anaconda Copper's holdings of Greene Cananea totaled 19,690 shares at the end of last year. According to Anaconda officials little addition has been made to this amount since then.

Corn Products.

In some quarters it is expected an extra dividend of 75 cents a share will be declared by Corn Products directors soon. As 25 cents extra was paid in July, this would bring total distributions for the current year to $3 a share. The stock pays regular dividends of $2 a share. In 1926 $1 a share extra was paid. Estimates are that earnings for the fourth quarter will exceed those of the preceding three months when 84 cents a share was shown on the 2,530,000 shares outstanding. Nine months earnings were $2.69 a share, so that $1 a share in the current period would bring the year's total to $3.69 a share, compared with $4.02 in 1926.

U. S. Steel Common.

A story is being passed around in some circles that excellent scale buying has been coming into Steel common in the past week's recessions. The demand generally is credited to interests outside the corporation, and gossip has it that buying might represent acquisition of stock by those who are expected to be given representation on the board of directors in the near future. There is no confirmation of this report, but many appear inclined to believe it.

Rubber's Position in Crude.

While it is understood the Du Ponts feel the U. S. Rubber Company can be developed into a larger revenue-producer from its rubber goods manufacturing activities, which cover the whole field of tires, footwear and mechanical goods, their primary interest in the company is said to be in the company's imports and crude rubber plantations. U. S. Rubber, through a subsidiary, has complete ownership in rubber plantation properties in the Far East which have potential earning capacity of almost incalculable volume. These plantations comprise a total area of more than 134,000 acres of which upwards of 104,000 are located in Sumatra, and nearly 30,000 acres in Malaya. Of the total area, more than 82,500 acres have been planted.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 12 to 17 points under renewed liquidation combined with local and southern selling, evidently influenced by continued talk of probable domestic mill curtailment and relatively weak Liverpool cables accompanied by unfavorable trade reports from Manchester.

Stop orders were uncovered as prices broke below the previous points of resistance, the decline extending to 18.40c for January and 18.84c for May before the end of the first hour, or about 30 to 32 points net lower.

Cable advices from Liverpool reported heavy all-around liquidation, with poor absorption in the Liverpool market, also fair demand for cotton cloths in Manchester, but yarns were dull.

The market steadied slightly after the execution of stop orders on the early decline, but except for a little trade buying or covering little demand was in evidence and prices weakened again later under renewed liquidation. At midday January was selling around 18.45c and May 18.81c, or 30 to 26 points net lower. Some southern selling was reported here, but the offerings were attributed chiefly to liquidation of old long accounts.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK SHARES REACH NEW TOP

General List Quiet In Local Market

There was not much volume to the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange at the start of the new week this morning, but prices were steady in the general list. Recent leaders such as Lone Star and Standard Sanitary were slow in getting started, but nominal quotations on these issues were practically unchanged.

Pronounced strength noted in First National Bank shares recently continued to have reflection in today's dealings when the stock sold at the highest price on record, $355 a share. In the early market a five-share lot changed hands at 350 and was followed later by the trade at 355. The 350 price equaled the old high on the shares, recorded in 1926 just before a stock dividend was paid. Last previous price on First National was $335, a sale being recorded at that figure last week.

STANDARD OIL SUBSIDIARIES

(Reported by Kay, Richards & Co.)

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Wheat prices here underwent an early setback today, influenced a good deal by weakness of the market at Liverpool. Larger arrivals of wheat and flour in Great Britain were reported. Opening at ⅝ to ⅝c decline, Chicago wheat soon showed a slight further sag.

Corn displayed power to rally, starting ¼c to ⅛c down and receding a little more, but then recovering well.

Oats were firmer.

Provisions tended to decline.

At noon wheat was ⅝c to 1⅛c net lower, and corn 1c to 1⅛c down.

Reports of a satisfactory crop outlook in Argentina gave considerable advantage to the selling side of the wheat market at times today, aside from word of increasing supplies of breadstuffs at Liverpool. It was also announced that during the last few days no rain has fallen in Argentina, and that thus the progress of the harvest was without impediment. Meanwhile, the Argentine government's preliminary crop estimate is looked for on Friday.

Although larger receipts of corn at Kansas City and Omaha eased the corn market at the outset today, good buying subsequently developed. Reports were current of small yields in sections which usually have a surplus. There were also advices of persistent good feeding demand, with assertions that the total supply of oats is 60,000,000 bushels less than the actual disappearance last year.

HAS LICENSE TO CROW

MISS GERTRUDE LEE

Miss Gertrude Lee, secretary of the Brooklyn Museum of Natural History, is shown with the mounted hen that turned into a rooster. It is a black Sumatra breed and came from a farm in Pennsylvania. For several years it laid eggs as most good hens do, and then gradually grew long tail feathers, a comb and three sets of spurs. At the same time becoming three times larger in size. Such cases of sex reversal in life is rare.

COALITION CANDIDATE FOR CONSTABLE WINS

H. H. Schwinebratten, Republican-Democratic candidate for constable of Upper St. Clair township, Saturday was declared elected in the report of the special board which counted the votes of the Second district of that township. John Kletzli, sticker candidate, had been returned winner by six votes in the precinct board's return.

The recount board threw out 44 ballots where Kletzli stickers had been pasted over the name of Schwinebratten, declaring the ballot had been mutilated, although the intention of the voter was plain. The election of Kletzli has been contested in Common Pleas Court.

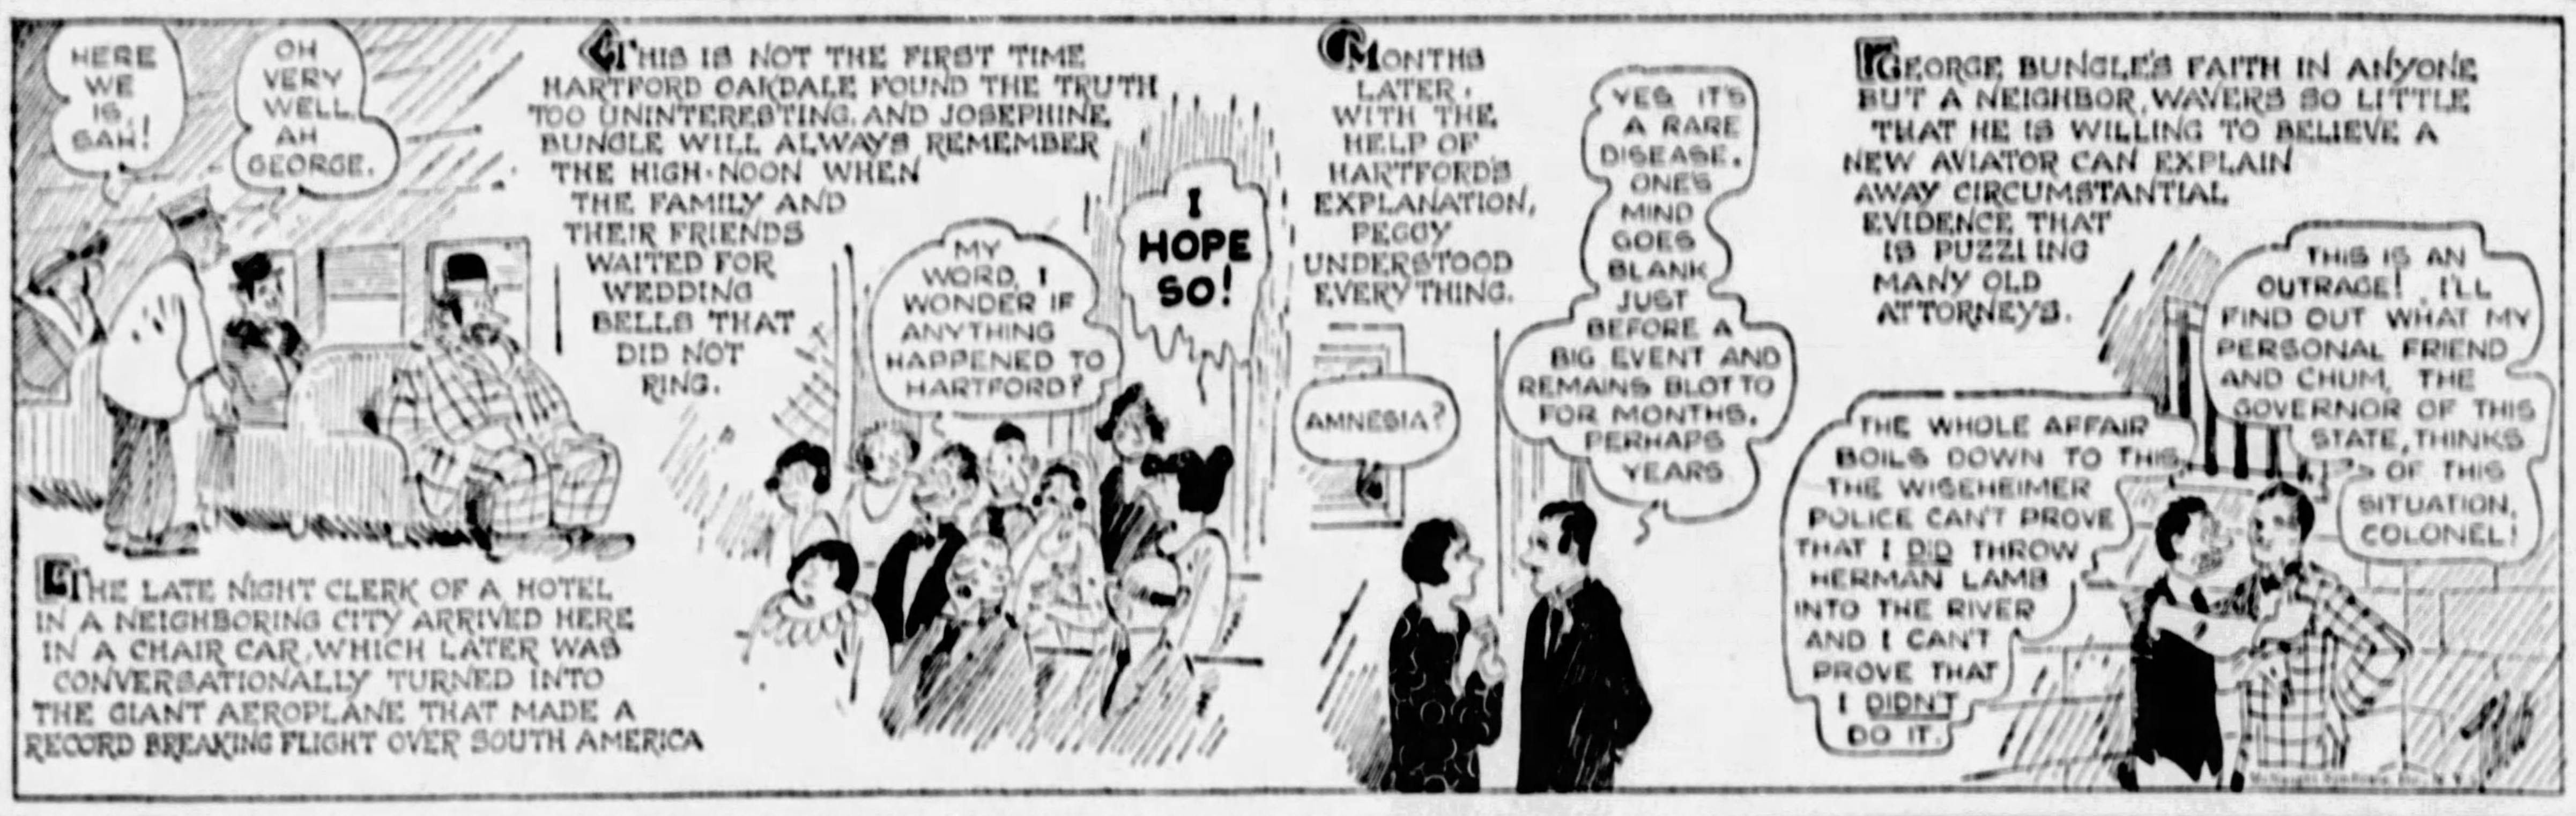
THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . . Back Again



HERE WE IS, SAH!
OH VERY WELL, AH GEORGE.
THE LATE NIGHT CLERK OF A HOTEL IN A NEIGHBORING CITY ARRIVED HERE IN A CHAIR CAR, WHICH LATER WAS CONVERSATIONALLY TURNED INTO THE GIANT AEROPLANE THAT MADE A RECORD BREAKING FLIGHT OVER SOUTH AMERICA
THIS IS NOT THE FIRST TIME HARTFORD OAKDALE FOUND THE TRUTH TOO UNINTERESTING, AND JOSEPHINE BUNGLE WILL ALWAYS REMEMBER THE HIGH-NOON WHEN THE FAMILY AND THEIR FRIENDS WAITED FOR WEDDING BELLS THAT DID NOT RING.
MY WORD, I WONDER IF ANYTHING HAPPENED TO HARTFORD?
I HOPE SO!
MONTHS LATER, WITH THE HELP OF HARTFORD'S EXPLANATION, PEGGY UNDERSTOOD EVERYTHING.
AMNESIA?
YES IT'S A RARE DISEASE. ONE'S MIND GOES BLANK JUST BEFORE A BIG EVENT AND REMAINS BLOT TO FOR MONTHS, PERHAPS YEARS
GEORGE BUNGLE'S FAITH IN ANYONE BUT A NEIGHBOR WAVERS SO LITTLE THAT HE IS WILLING TO BELIEVE A NEW AVIATOR CAN EXPLAIN AWAY CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE THAT IS PUZZLING MANY OLD ATTORNEYS.
THE WHOLE AFFAIR BOILS DOWN TO THIS. THE WISEHEIMER POLICE CAN'T PROVE THAT I DID THROW HERMAN LAMB INTO THE RIVER AND I CAN'T PROVE THAT I DIDN'T DO IT.
THIS IS AN OUTRAGE! I'LL FIND OUT WHAT MY PERSONAL FRIEND AND CHUM, THE GOVERNOR OF THIS STATE, THINKS OF THIS SITUATION, COLONEL!

THIS WAGGISH WORLD

by Roy K. Moulton

AMERICAN IMPRESSIONS OF LORD ELPUS

LORD ELPUS, eldest son of the Earl of Rottendene, who came over here to collect impressions, has been lost in the American jungle for several weeks. We had feared he might have been scalped by the Indians around Cincinnati or fallen foul of western desperadoes, but his present contribution to literature shows him to be quite well and as patently asinine as ever.

By LORD ELPUS.

IN GATHERING impressions for my forthcoming book I have found one condition in America which I consider dashed peculiar; and that is the naming of the cities. Fancy Punxsutawney, Kokomo and Medicine Hat. Why can't they select sensible names like we have, such as Upper Tooting and Nether Wallop? There is no sense to some of these American names at all.

For instance, they call a lift an "elevator". Of course, it is an elevator when it is going up or elevating, but what are the bally things when they are coming down? Over home we sensibly call them "lifts". What I mean to say is—well, no matter.

One of the peculiarly nonsensical habits I have noticed here is the habit of train guards in shouting "All aboard!" before the train starts. If the passengers are all aboard why announce the fact and make such a beastly row about it? Why mention it at all? Another thing I can't understand is why they take up the tickets before the passenger reaches his destination. How is a passenger to remember where he is to alight if they take his ticket away?

THERE is, of course, a very rough element here in the United States. I refer to the bandits and the gunmen and footpads, although I have been very lucky at the hands of the American crooks. I have been held up but once. The blighter relieved me of my wallet and my timepiece and after the operation I asked this bloodthirsty American what part of the country he hailed from.

"I'i was born within sight o' Big Ben and in 'earing of Bow Bells, your honor," he replied. "I 'ave been over 'ere in blighted H'America for three years and have done well, m'lord."

As I said before, but—no matter, no matter.

MUCH to my surprise, after reading various English impressions of America, I find traces of culture here. The people are not as savage as I had been given to understand. For instance, the other night I attended quite a decent symphony concert. Of course, it lacked that indefinable something that marks our concerts in Covent Garden, but it was quite well done for a young country. Give them a chance, say I. We may as well give them a chance, don't you know, because they will take it anyhow.

I was asking an American newspaper man the names of some interesting people for a titled Englishman like myself to interview—some people who would talk to me sympathetically. He mentioned Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, whom I promised to go and see while in that city.

"And," added the newspaper man, "may God have mercy on your soul." What he meant by that I am sure I have no idea. I wonder if it is possible this Johnnie was putting the bird on me.

ONE thing I have noticed with some satisfaction, and that is that these uncultured Americans have pledged two million dollars for the Shakespeare memorial to be built by us Englishmen at Stratford-on-Avon. With two million of money from America we Englishmen should be able to erect quite a decent memorial.

BUGS BAER SAYS

SIX-DAY sprocket spasm arriving at its delayed finish, spectators go home and comb peanuts out of their hair.

Loughran and Slattery fight in Garden Monday night. This will be 15-round bicycle race.

Impossible to tell just what fascination these merry-go-rounders have for public. Bicycles were novelties 30 years ago, but we should be used to them now.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

But we all like to see these marathon tortures. There is also an added attraction of leaving with a better overcoat than you brought in.

When the race is finished the riders have rushed 2,500 miles. This is enough to have crowded the Atlantic, but not on a bicycle.

As a touring proposition we cannot recommend six-day race. Who wants to pass the same hot dog stand 20 times to the mile?

Still it has its refreshing angles. How would you like to travel 2,000 miles without having the price of gasoline changed on you?

The next six-day race will be held in Chicago. For the information of those who like to know how great men spend their leisure moments, we will say that the contestants will not ride from New York to Illinois on their bikes.

They use roller skates between towns.

"You Said It Marceline!"

— By MARCELINE d'ALROY —

ON "THIS QUESTION OF MARRIAGE."

Some women LOVE a good looking
CAR. Others prefer a good looking HUSBAND. Of course, the CAR is
The EASIER to run, but a
Handsome MAN has his good
Points, TOO. In the FIRST Place, he is HARDER to get, and Still harder to KEEP, and
UNDOUBTEDLY harder to HANDLE.
But if he is a SMART
UP-TO-THE-MINUTE model, he is WORTH it. Besides, any woman
Can BUY a good, reliable car,
With a swell looking BODY,
And THEN go out and see half a Dozen other WOMEN sporting
The SAME model; but the girl
Who GETS a good, reliable,
Swell-looking CHAP for a
HUSBAND, though her friends may Want to BORROW him, they Cannot OWN him, which is SOMETHING. Then WHY do women
So often treat their CARS
With MORE consideration than
Their MEN? And why are some MEN apparently more devoted
To GOLF than to their wives?
GOLF is a sport and
MOTORING is a pastime, What then
Is MARRIAGE that it, too,
Should not be taken SERIOUSLY?

Operators Should Attend Washington Coal Parley

The humane heart of Pittsburgh, warmed by the hope of peace in the coal industry by Christmas that was contained in the proposal for a parley between operators and miners, called for Tuesday in Washington by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, was again saddened by the curt refusal of leading coal companies to attend.

It had been hoped that the parties to this controversy would forget their controversial points at least long enough to give such courtesy to President Coolidge's administration as would be vouchsafed by attendance at the conference. It had been thought, even though there might be in some quarters a disposition to "stand pat" on the situation as it exists, there would be no objection to discussing the problems with Secretary Davis, who said he was acting "with the knowledge of the President."

Under the circumstances it would appear that failure to participate is tantamount to telling President Coolidge to mind his own business and leave coal operators to attend to their affairs. Well, they have that right, if they wish to stand upon it.

Perhaps there may be a thought among the operators that they have the fight "won." If they harbor any such impression they surely are deluded, since no strike ever has been won or ever can be won, by either side. A strike cannot be won because time cannot be recalled. Every day that passes is gone forever and with it goes whatever economic loss that day entails.

The operators may have the miners "licked," but does that justify them in refusing to discuss a situation in which women and children are suffering for the bare necessities of life, with winter making their condition still more deplorable? At what cost in self respect is such a "victory" obtained?

Business and industry throughout the bituminous district has suffered as a result of this strike and it is not benefited by an arrogant attitude on the part of any person connected with this fight, no matter how strongly he may justify himself with the self-consoling thought that he is in the right.

In the hills surrounding Pittsburgh are women and children virtually starving. That would be an actuality but for such scant aid as is given them. There can be no justification for that and the man who thinks he can escape the responsibility will find out how mistaken he is.

We feel sure that the men who could settle this strike if they would are all kind-hearted men, men with a sense of justice and square dealing. We feel equally sure that they have been blinded by a too strict adherence to what they consider their own rights. We hope they will let their better side assert itself now and that they will, at least, give a hearing to what may come up at the proposed parley in Washington.

They owe that to themselves as well as to the public.

Refusal to Join League Again Shown to Be Wise

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, now testifies to the wisdom of the United States in not joining the League of Nations and assuming the obligations of Article XVI and Article X of the Covenant.

Article XVI would have obligated us to cease commercial intercourse—stop our trade—with an aggressor nation. Article X would have put our military forces at the disposal of a Council of the League of Nations, to join in war against an "aggressor."

Recently in the House of Commons Sir Austen told why Great Britain had refused to sign the Geneva Protocol, providing a means of putting Article X in force against an aggressor nation.

The reason, he said, was that it was frankly impossible to define an "aggressor nation" in the event of war. He reminded his hearers that by clever diplomacy a nation really an aggressor might make itself appear to be the one attacked. A war-making nation, he said, was usually clever enough to keep within its legal rights and so maneuver as to force its opponent to make the open break. He said he did not want Great Britain thus to be placed in the position of fighting for a nation that was wrong morally.

Very excellent doctrine. This is precisely what was said by the group of Senators who fought the League in Washington until they killed it. They said that it was none of the business of the United States to pledge its arms or imperil its trade on behalf of participants in European quarrels, particularly since we were situated across the ocean and were incapable of judging the justice of those quarrels.

Now Sir Austen Chamberlain says that even England cannot pierce the fog of Europe's diplomatic intrigue and be sure that her armed forces will be employed on the side of justice.

Nevertheless the agitation to get us in the League by hook or crook persists. The President has had to disapprove a suggestion of ex-Secretary of War Newton D. Baker that the United States should agree "not to exercise its legal right to trade with a nation declared by the League of Nations to have been the aggressor in war."

We are well out of commitments to participate in the armed conflict to which Europe is moving, and the country wants to stay out.

The people of the United States want the Government to look to our defenses and mind its own business. Minding our own business is the specialty of President Coolidge and the nation is gratified by his announced determination to round out our navy and complete our air defense program.

Passionate Interest

We Could Use Some of It.

Mr. Max Hubbuch of Indianapolis sends an extract from a French weekly, L'Illustration's, giving an account of "Impressions of Russia."

"A great hall is devoted to aviation, with models of airplanes, engines and propellers. The workmen are passionately interested in aviation, knowing what a great role it will play in the coming war." Too bad our workmen in Congress cannot get "passionately" interested in aviation.

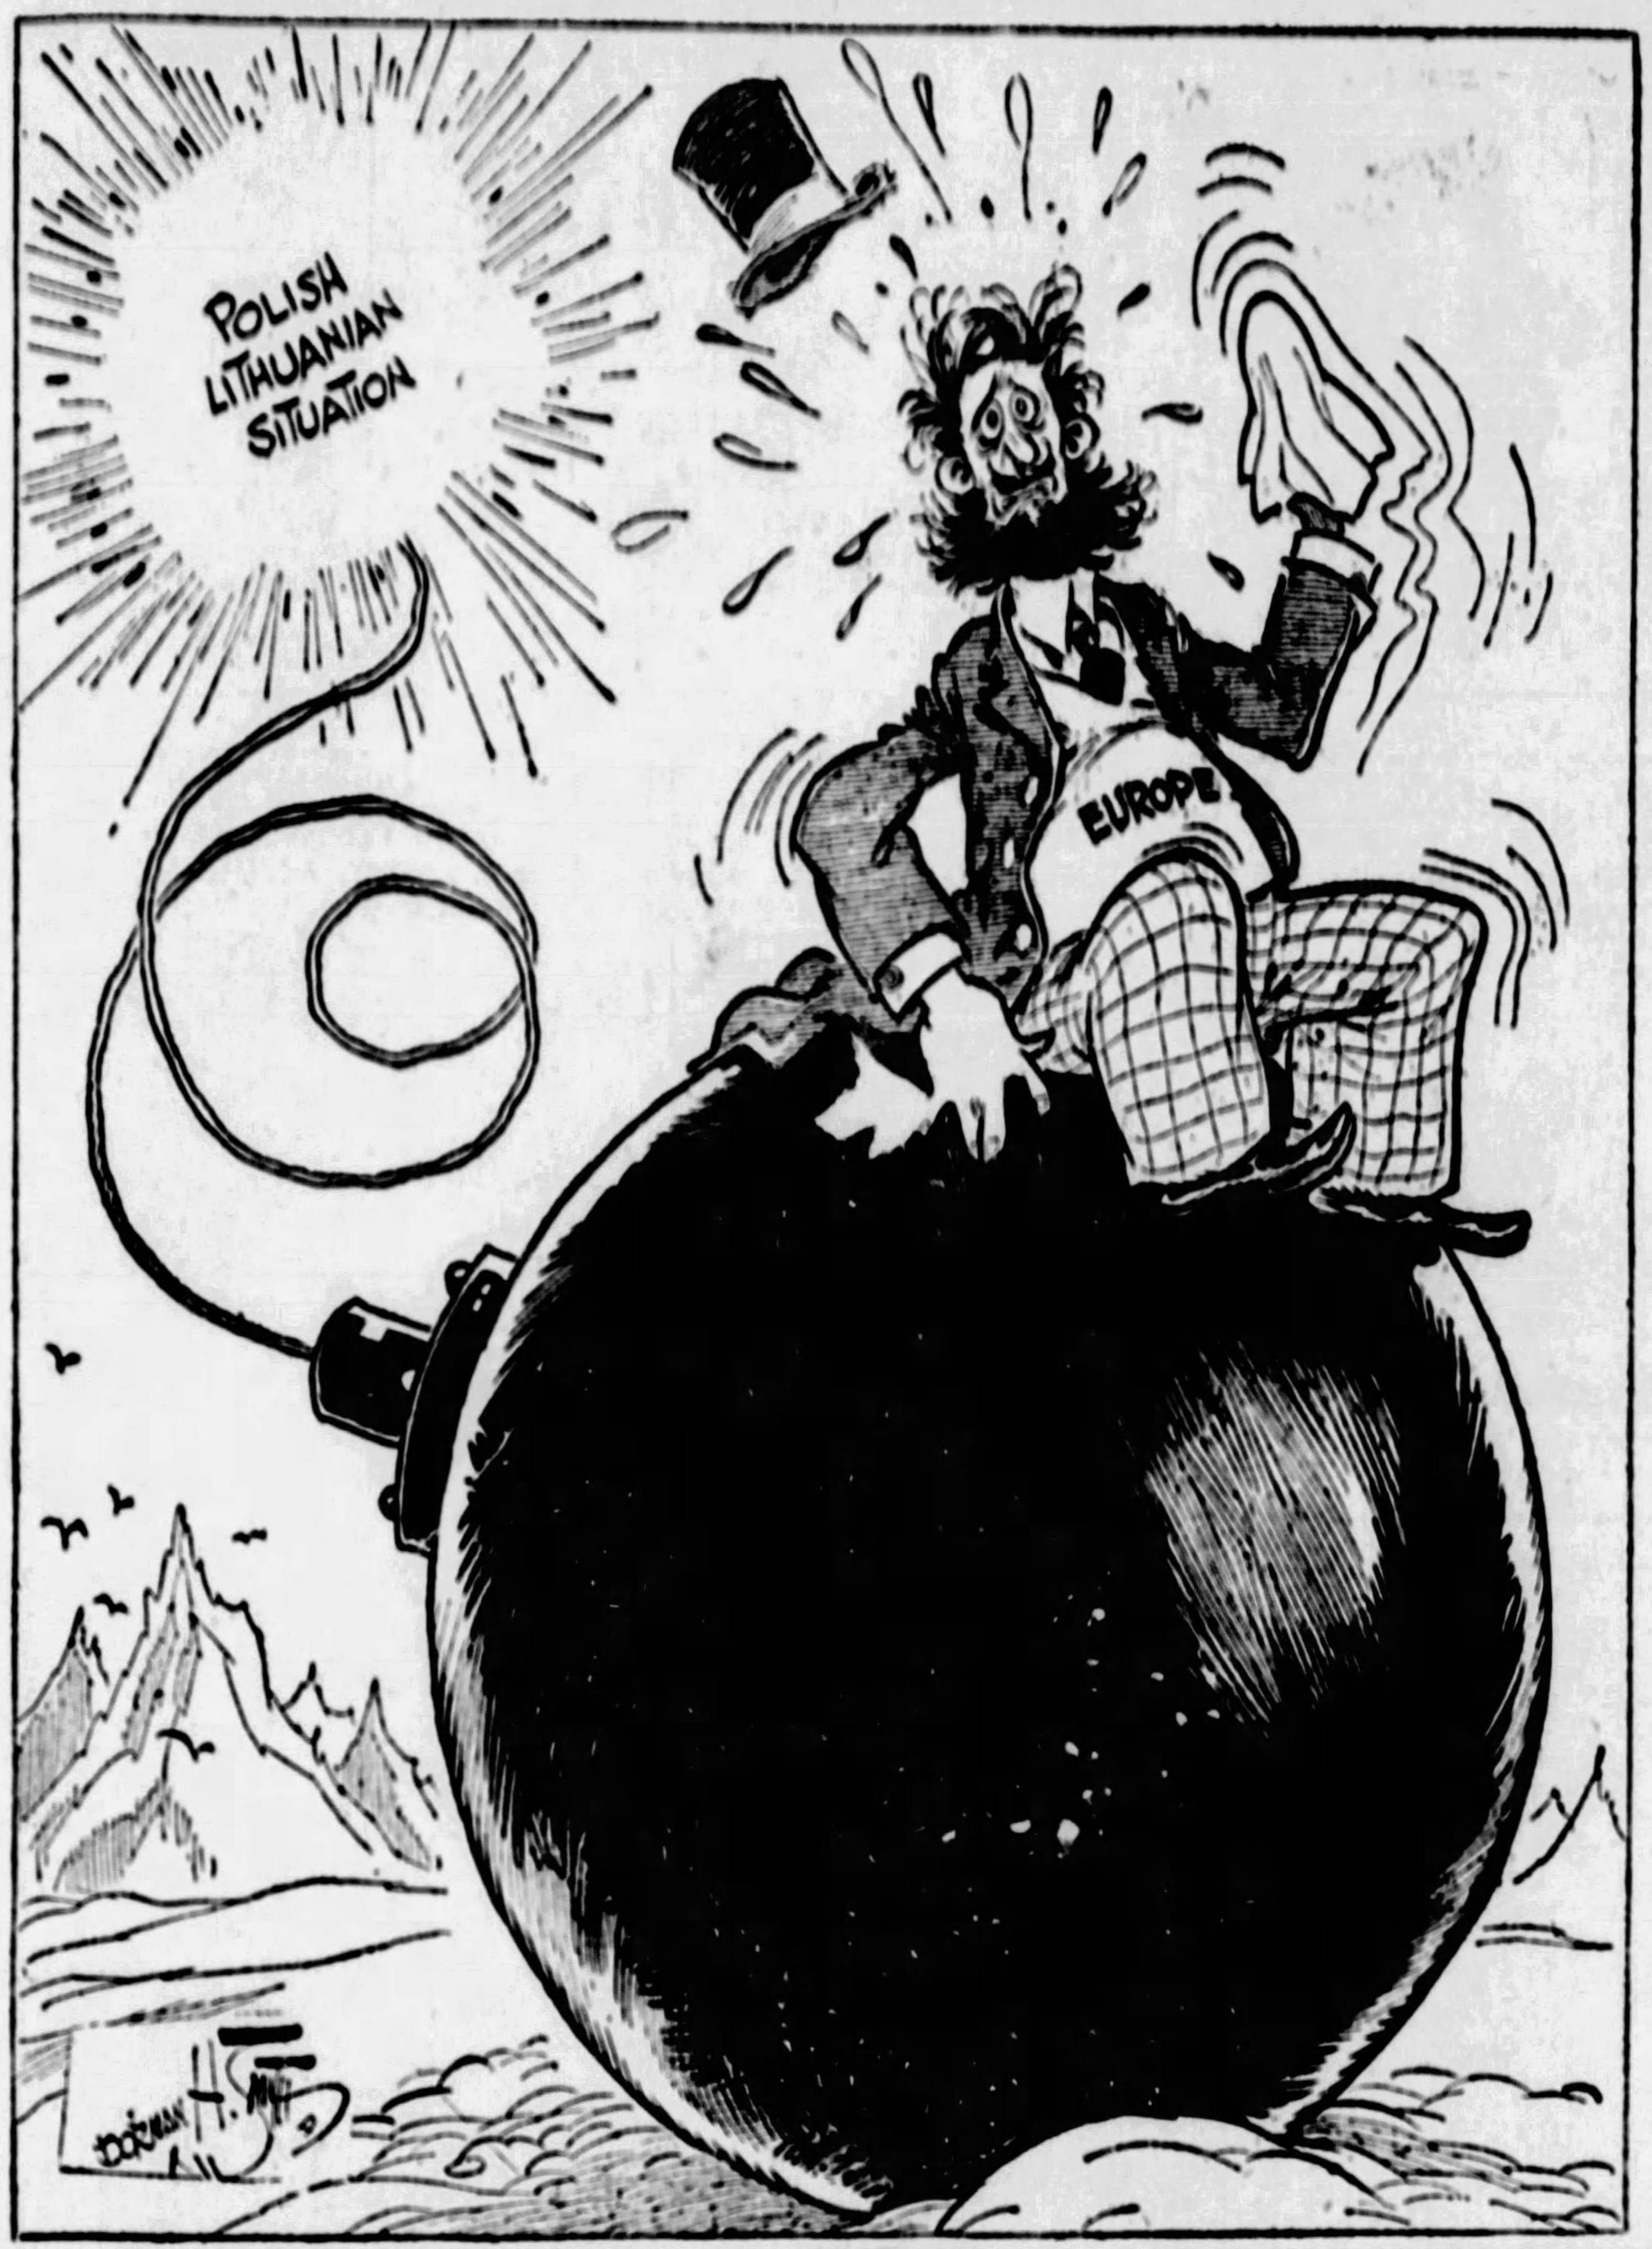
They will have to appropriate much money for that coming war—if it reaches us.

Why "Waning"?

Men Will Live to 144 Some Day.

A newspaper speaks of John D. Rockefeller's "waning years." Why WANING? At eighty-eight a man should be enjoying the best part of his life, his hard work done, with leisure for contemplation. Luigi Cornaro, who was given up to die before he was fifty and lived to 105, wrote to the Pope: "I had to live to be ninety to know that the world is beautiful." And again he told the Pope: "At ninety-four I mount my horse to ride without assistance." The natural life of man if he would give himself a chance would be 144 years, twice three score and ten, with four years to spare.

"EXCUSE ME IF I SEEM A BIT NERVOUS!"



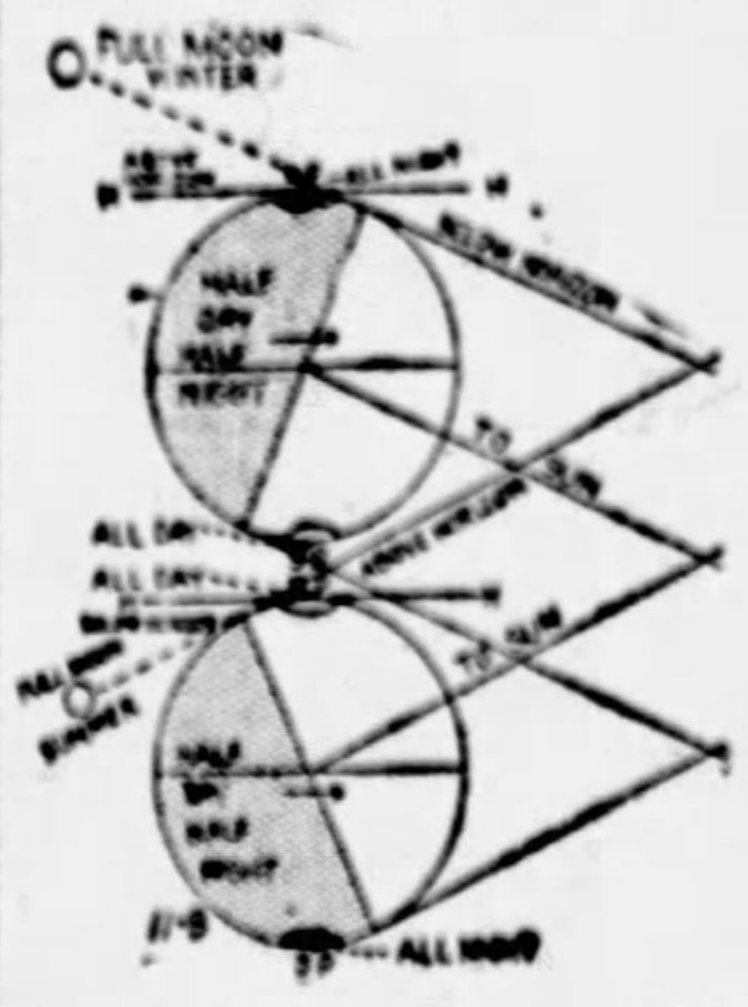
Garrett P Serviss Says:

Polar Moonlight

"The question has come up whether there is a moon at the North Pole. We often hear of the sun at the North Pole, but rarely, if ever do we hear of the moon. I have consulted all available books relating to this subject, but can find no satisfactory answer.—M. A. R."

THE moon can be seen from the North Pole as well as the sun. But since all visits to the North Pole, up to date, have been made during the polar day, explorers have not seen the moon from that point.

So, too, those who have gone to the North Pole say nothing about the stars because the stars there, just as on other parts of the earth, are visible only in the nighttime. But both moon and stars are seen at points within the Arctic Circle that are habitable to man, or where he can remain long enough to view the heavens both day and night.



The full moon is visible from the pole after the sun has set at the beginning of the six months' polar night. This is illustrated by the upper part of our diagram, showing the situation at the winter solstice, when the sun is 23½ degrees below the horizon of the North Pole, and will not be seen there again until the lapse of six months (effects of refraction being neglected), while the full moon, which must always be opposite the sun in the sky, appears 23½ degrees above the horizon at the North Pole.

During the middle of winter the moon is not visible from the pole when in its "new moon" or "first" and "last" quarter phases, because its orbit lies nearly in the plane of the ecliptic, having an inclination of only about five degrees. On the other hand, in the middle of summer, the full moon is not visible from the North Pole, while its "new" and "quarter" phases are lost in the light of the unsetting sun. This should be evident from a study of the diagram, which represents the geometrical facts at the solstices, but does not show the inclination of the moon's orbit, which causes some variation in the visibility of the moon from the poles.

You understand, of course, that when sun or moon is seen from the pole it appears circling horizontally around the sky because of the earth's daily rotation, instead of rising in the east and setting in the west, as occurs always outside the polar circles.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Help Him!

ISN'T there some relative of yours who needs your help?

It is to be hoped that you are not the kind who avoids your poor and struggling kinsfolk.

Financially you might be able to aid a relative in getting a better education, in getting a more comfortably furnished home, in sending children to college, or whatever the burden that weighs most heavily.

You argue that helping that relative weakens him, and to an extent that might be true.

But when he has had misfortune and drawbacks that account for his trouble a little help from you might give a boost that would change sorrow into gladness.

Often a load becomes too heavy to carry and the bearer loses confidence in his ability to lighten it.

The man who sees no chance is apt to give up in despair.

You may have a friend or a relative just at this point.

If you are able to help him you ought to do so.

Give him a boost that will assist him in helping himself.

Something to Think About

By BRUNO LESSING

What's the Big Idea?

LOOKING over Monday morning's report of Sunday's sermons. One clergyman pleads for outlawing war. He says America has been called to teach brotherhood. He does not say whether the Ku Klux Klan is to join in the teaching.

Another clergyman calls war a moral evil. Another urges the church to stop wars. He says America is secretly preparing for conflict. Another says the soldiers should take a referendum on the next war. Maybe that isn't a bad idea. The man who is going to be shot ought to have something to say in the matter.

Another clergyman says history shows war is unnecessary. This clergyman, to be sure, is not a famous historian. Another says war is the greatest evil.

Why is there so much talk about war from pulpits? Have these clergymen any secret source of information? Are we in present danger of having another war on our hands? This surely is a subject which interests all of us.

Is a lot of talking about war a good way of preventing war? If so, why not let us all talk about it? But there is no sense in talking about a subject unless the aim is to come to some agreement. And these clergymen talk at so many different angles that they never could come to an agreement.

If we're going to have a war, let us prepare for it through military organization. If we're not going to have a war, why not quit talking about it?

Anyway, are clergymen any better equipped to discuss this question than intelligent laymen? They didn't stop the last war. They even prayed for both sides. We thought it was queer for a German clergyman to pray to God for victory for the Germans. The Germans thought it was queer for our clergymen to pray to God for victory for us.

Christ, according to the Bible, was for peace. "And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other."

Christ, according to the Bible, was a fighter. "And when He had made a scourge of small cords, He drove them all out of the temple; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables."

From these quotations, the one of gentleness, the other of roughness, most clergymen take their text, according to their moods.

It is not a mistake for clergymen to bring up the subject of war in times of peace? They never have prevented a war and never will. By harping on the subject they merely keep it in their hearers' minds.

Is there not a far greater and far more important field in which these earnest men can teach and persuade, by their preaching and their practice? Would it not be better to dwell upon the individual lives of their hearers and try to make each one so charitable and self-sacrificing that the thought of war would never enter his head?

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: Divorce by Agreement

DO YOU WANT A DIVORCE?

I hope not, but in case you do, what lie are you going to tell the judge?

"Lie?" you protest. "Why, I wouldn't dream of lying to a judge!"

Wouldn't you? Then the chances are just about 999 to 1,000 that you won't be able to get a divorce in these United States. For unless you have committed — OR WILL SWEAR THAT YOU HAVE COMMITTED—some fantastic misdemeanor against your mate, the courts hold no relief for you.

The average American doesn't commit fantastic misdemeanors against mates. We don't function in terms of grand opera. Seldom, if ever, do we chew each other's ears, bust each other in the jaw, or elope with Henry Villyuns or Petite Villainesses. T[illegible] sort of thing goes against c[illegible]tional sense of humor and spoils our standing with the Chamber of Commerce. However, we do at times find each other extremely uncongenial and we long for freedom and a new chance at happiness. But can we get up in court and tell it to the judge and be thereby released from our marital vow? We can NOT. A mere yearning to be rid of each other forever is not accepted as grounds for divorce in America. We must say it with brickbats or blondes or stay out of court. Hence the large and remunerative business in romantic fiction now conducted by our divorce lawyers.

Judge Ben Lindsey would put a stop to all this undignified and dishonest practice by legalizing "divorce by mutual consent." In his latest book, "THE COMPANIONATE MAR[illegible]E," he proposes this bill—

"A bill to amend the laws relating to divorce would add a clause providing that 'where couples are childless, and where the efforts of the magistrate to bring about a reconcilement have failed, and where the couple mutually desire a divorce, the divorce shall be granted without further expense or needless delay.' This would require no lawyer, any more than getting married requires a lawyer. A judge can marry people, and by this law, he could, under the prescribed conditions, unmarry them."

"But think of the terrible danger in easy divorce," some one cries. "Think how it would cheapen home life and promote licentiousness!"

But how about the terrible danger of easy marriage? Do you have to hire lawyers, draw up briefs, submit to examinations, in order to get married? No indeed. Yet the marriage of every unfit couple presents an even greater menace than the divorce of such a couple. Such marriages are apt to spread a physical and moral contagion through any community. A married vixen can cheapen home life as disastrously as any number of divorcees. But do we worry over that? Not at all.

"You can't stop people from getting married," you say. "That would be interfering with their constitutional right."

I admit it. But that argument works both ways. If they have a constitutional right to get married when they love each other they certainly have a constitutional right to get unmarried when they hate each other. And, since they're going to do it anyway, why make them lie about it?

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Lay late, as usual, and broke bread with Karl Kitchen, and to walk, discussing things grave and gay. Then home and at my labors until Irvin Cobb came to say farewell against departing soon for a tour of South Amercia.

A drizzle falling, I set off to stroll in Central Park and around the reservoir fell in with a stranger who told me a strange tale. He had discharged his valet the day before and going home found the fellow had snipped buttons from every garment in his wardrobe.

In the evening to the Commodore to a dinner George Sweeney gave to James Woods. And Reed Albee, Walter Vincent, their wives and Father Malone of Denver there and we sat about talking of this and that until the clock struck one. So home to bed.

Jefferson Market Jail—for years the home of the night court where straying ladies stood in wordless agony or sobbed promises to be better—will soon be a memory. In New York fashion a 20-story apartment building will rise on the historic site. Crouching under the shadows of the glowering elevated it has been, next to the Tombs, the gloomiest building in town.

Back of the Jefferson jail is one of the most interesting streets in the city. It is a spot the tourist rarely sees—a blind alley about 100 feet long and known as Patchin Place, a refuge for innumerable writers, painters and sculptors.

Patchin Place is a double row of quaint little red brick houses with white stoops and Georgian cornices. There are ailanthus trees for shade and for many years at night at the blind end stood a lamp-post with blobs of dim and uncertain light.

It is much like one of those seemingly forgotten narrow and winding streets in Paris even to the famous concierge, Mrs. Wiedersweiler, who recently passed on. Houses in Patchin are for six separate tenants and there are in all 55 apartments.

With the new apartment building Patchin Place will be more completely hemmed in. But the compensation is that the big structure will help deaden the rattle of the elevated and the noise of screaming and terrified men and women brought into the jail.

Among those who found a temporary haven in Patchin Place are such illustrious figures as Padriac Colum, E. E. Cummings, John Reed, Aylse Gregory, John Cowper Powys, John Howard Lawson, Mary Digges and J. B. Flannagan.

In Patchin Place years ago I was at one of those studio parties where guests sit cross-legged on the floor in candle light and attempt "arty" conversation. There was a young girl there who wore a Grecian robe and sandals and burned up cigarets with three or four deep inhalations. To my plowboy mind, she was the essence of sophistication as she talked of this lover and that with startling frankness. She told how she ruled men by kicking them out, only to have them returning contrite and whining. I came from a community where women often ruled men by gentle fits of fainting. It was quite a revelation. Less than a year ago I heard of the same lady living in a small town near Topeka, Kan. She was the wife of a simple grocer, the mother of his three children, a weekly attendant at the neighborhood movie—and quite happy.

A man who has long been one of those slick salesmen of doubtful stocks—but is now a better boy—writes me dentists and doctors were his easiest victims. He says that due to their absolute lack of business knowledge they became gullible for the sort of glib talk the average business man would give a merry laugh.

The Accused Capitalism

By DR. FRANK CRANE

After you get through arguing and reasoning, disputes are often settled by the appearance of a large, full-sized fact.

The significant fact in the world today is that capitalistic America is enormously prosperous, while socialistic Russia is practically a bankrupt.

This profit does not come from people whose income depends upon dividends, rents and such things, which are called the unearned increment, but it comes from the savings of wages by workers. The recently published figures of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington show that wage workers receive annually vastly more than those who live on incomes. About half of the collections from income tax levies during 1925-26 came from workers and less than 10 per cent of the workers pay income taxes.

Most of the theories which rail at the capitalistic system are idle. They cannot stand up against the conclusive proof that working and saving is the basis of America's prosperity and not her hoarded wealth.

The wealth of a country lies in its labor, not in its money bags. Nowhere else on earth does so large a number of people work so much, spend so much and save so much as here. Our proudest possession is our workers. Without their efforts hoarded capital would be useless.

It is their investments which constitute our great units of capital. It makes this country the ideal place for a man to spend his active years in gainful labor and for him to save up enough to take care of himself in old age. We have opportunity and safety. Nowhere else are jobs so plentiful and wages so high, nowhere else is capital so secure, and because capital is secure the jobs of laborers are secure.

No wonder that all the efforts of the officials of Mexico seem not able to stop the flow of emigrants from that country to this. No wonder the peoples of Europe are making every effort to come to this country. In the end it is economic reasons that have their way.

The cursed capitalistic country of the United States remains a mecca for those who want simply an opportunity to work and security for their savings.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

About This Time

ABOUT this time, when every mind,
With thoughts of love is filled;
When all our dreams are sweet and kind,
Our petty hates are stilled,
How doubly dear are those we prize,
The restless, boisterous crew
Of children with their laughing eyes,
Their spotless souls and true!

About this time may all who tread
The pleasant paths of earth,
Find means on sombre lives to shed
A share of Christmas mirth,
When candles gleam across the snow,
And bells of Christmas chime,
May every child's sweet spirit glow
With joy, about this time!

Tales That Are Told

Making It Clear

MR. PRITCHARD, the village grocer, was a very learned man. It had been said of him that he could answer almost every question that was put to him.

When, therefore, a certain woman entered his shop and asked whether he knew how long the dodo had been extinct, he was only too ready with his reply.

"Oh, about 3,000 years, I should say," he replied. "Maybe more and maybe less."

"Right," said the customer briskly, dumping her shopping basket on the counter, "then understand that I don't want any of its eggs."

Kith and Kin

WITH a rather embarrassed air the young couple came in from the moonlit garden. Of the two, the man was perhaps the more nervous.

"Well, what have you two children been jawing about in the garden all this time?" inquired the girl's parent breezily.

"Oh," returned his daughter, with an air of great unconcern, "we've been discussing kith and kin."

"Yeth, they were," chimed in her small brother, who had overheard a certain part of the conversation. "He asked her if he could kith thith, and she said 'You kin'!"

Well Placed

"THERE'S nothing really wrong with you," said the specialist to the taciturn patient, "from a physical point of view. But your nerves are a little frayed. What you need is a holiday apart from your friends and family in some quiet, restful spot where you will be—if I may say so—close to Nature, and that sort of thing."

"May as well get back to work, then."

"Why?"

"Well, I'm a lighthouse-keeper."

Particulars Lacking

PANGS of jealousy were in Miss Biddleby's heart when she heard that her former admirer had been accepted by Miss Jinkinson, and when she happened to meet that young woman she could not resist giving a thrust.

"I hear you've accepted Tom," she said. "I suppose he never told you he once proposed to me?"

"No," answered Tom's fiancee. "He told me he had done lots of foolish things, but I didn't ask him what they were!"
